Leadership?
It Is in Action

Much of the strident cry for presidential leadership in the wake of the Sputnik seems to be demanding that Mr. Eisenhower rush out into the White House backyard and create a moon out of dust in a sort of patty-cake, patty-cake manner.

Few of those so frantically calling for leadership have indicated what they propose be done. The inescapable conclusion is that these are going around in an orbit even more elliptical than that of our best-known world traveler, Sputnik himself.

Actually, the leadership shown by the President has been prompt and productive. Until years have passed and men have written their memoirs we will never know the full story of former Secretary of Defense Wilson's inadequacies. That his administration was a failure is hardly to be denied.

By his own words he was not a man of imagination. He was not interested, he said, when he denied money for research, in why the grass was green. Told that if more money were not spent on research the Russians might achieve a substantial psychological victory by putting a satellite into the sky, he replied, "So what?"

Under Charlie Wilson's administration the bureaucracy of the Defense Department mushroomed to new horizons. He did not curb the interservice rivalry. (The Air Force Thor and the Army Jupiter were, and are, almost identical.) He was, on the basis of available evidence, a stubborn, willful man of the type described as often wrong but never in doubt.

Defense Secretary

"Leadership" in national defense must be activated by the defense secretary. It was known at least a year ago that the President would not stand in the way, as they say, of Mr. Wilson if he chose to depart.

Defense Secretary Neil McElroy, with no more power and no more direction than was given Mr. Wilson, has moved with necessary speed.

He has taken over direct supervision of the missile program. He has ordered from the Army, Navy, and Air Force all data needed to determine what overlapping and duplication exist. In addition he has asked for immediate notice of any bottleneck. Another feature is his order for weekly progress reports.

A proposal for pooling all the know-how of nuclear physicists and missile technologists of the NATO nations serves two purposes. It assists to restore some confidence and prestige to the NATO nations. It also is sound sense in that it could produce a team result. Without question there are "missile brains" in many countries which are not being put to use because only the powerful and the rich may indulge in such weapons, which cost such fantastic sums.

Legislative Plans

The administration is busy with legislative plans which must wait on the January session of the Congress. Certain restrictions in existing laws must be eliminated before pooling may be had. The more frantic petitioners for leadership may recall that the past Congress refused the President's request for a pooling of nuclear technology.

Secretary McElroy has indicated that if his powers to remove bottlenecks are not enough he will move for an "authority" such as the "Manhattan District" Franklin D. Roosevelt created to put through the crash program necessary to produce the first atomic bomb.

This may serve to reduce the interservice rivalry. The services will not wish to have their missile technology placed under such supervision. How deep this rivalry ran and how much duplication there is may not now be determined. That it was great is well known. Col. John Nickerson, for example, at Redstone Arsenal, was willing to jeopardize his career to try and break it down. He failed.

It is not at all wishful thinking, nor a Pollyanna rationalization, to say that history may record the Sputnik to have been the best thing that ever happened to us. This nation, being a democracy of checks and balances, moves in emergencies by shocks. Without the tragedy of Pearl Harbor, for example, we might not have got down to the business of total war in time to win.

IKE GREET'S PRIME MINISTER MACMILLAN
Meet on White House Steps Before First Conference

Ike, Macmillan Plan New Moves

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—The United States and Britain began a search today for means of countering Soviet thrusts in the Middle East and in the realm of super-weapons.

President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan sat down at the White House tonight to begin three days of consultations made urgent by two facts:

1. The Soviet Union has won an apparently solid foothold in the Middle East in Syria.
2. The Soviet Union has gained military, political and psychological advantages over the West by rocketing the first earth satellite into space.

WHITE HOUSE DINNER
The President, Macmillan, Secretary of State Dulles and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd of Britain continued the discussions during an informal White House dinner and on into the evening.

The President greeted the Prime Minister with an American "Hi" when they met at the White House. Macmillan said it was good to be here.
Macmillan and Dulles, who welcomed him at the airport this morning, both took the occasion to emphasize that the British-U.S. talks were not intended to exclude other Western nations.

RED CARNATION
The British Prime Minister, wearing a red carnation in his lapel, declared that the object was "to preserve the freedom of all the free nations, and give all

Auto Hits Pole And Disrupts Electric Service

Electric service in a large section of northwest Atlanta was disrupted Wednesday night when an automobile knocked down a utility line in the 3100 block of Arden road, NW.

Patrolman R. T. Appling said an automobile driven by Mrs. Margaret Hirsch Strauss, 47, of 225 Lakemoor Dr., NW, crashed into a parked car knocking it into a utility pole.

Patrolman Appling said Mrs. Strauss was booked on charges of failure to remain in proper lane and drunk on street. The parked car was owned by Harry Mehre, Atlanta Journal sports-writer and former University of Georgia and Ole Miss football coach.

Youth Found Guilty of Murder In Professor's Death, Gets Life

Andrew Joe Evans, 19, one of three youths charged with the fatal beating of a Georgia Tech professor, was found guilty Wednesday of murder by a Fulton Superior Court jury which recommended mercy for him.

Judge Durwood T. Pyle sentenced Evans, father of one child, to the life imprisonment term required under the jury's verdict. The verdict ended a three-day trial of Evans, who was jointly charged with Donald Gordon Little, 17, and Paul F. Ardesser, 20, for the fatal beating July 19 of Dr. William K. Pursley, 32, a physics professor.

The jury returned its verdict after approximately three hours of deliberation.

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Judge Pyle told the jury in a two-hour charge Wednesday morning that they could not convict Evans solely on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice. One of the co-defendants, Ardesser, testified against Evans on behalf of the state.

Ardesser said he remained in the automobile in which the trio was riding, when Evans and Little got out after stopping Dr. Pursley on Juniper street, NE, and asking him for directions to Marietta street "as a rib."

U.S. Fires Successful 'Vanguard'

AF Rocket Also Hits Far Space

From Wire Reports
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., Oct. 23—A Navy Vanguard missile, the rocket designed to carry the United States into the satellite race, soared to a height of 109 miles today in an "extremely successful" test flight.

The Defense Department in Washington said the rocket went considerably higher and reached a greater speed—4,250 miles an hour—than expected.

4,000 MILES UP?
Also in Washington the Air Force said tonight it has successfully fired a rocket high above the Pacific in project "Far Side"—after four failures.

However, the Air Force would not confirm a report by the Los Angeles Examiner that the rocket soared 4,000 miles above the earth. The newspaper said the four-stage rocket was sent aloft from a balloon at an altitude of 100,000 feet over Eniwetok Island.

The spokesman said, however, that scientists are almost certain the rocket exceeded 1,000 miles. This would be a world record for any man-made object and almost twice as high as Russia's earth satellite ever reached.

ON OCT. 21

The Air Force said the successful test took place Oct. 21 and "extensive data was obtained."

The Vanguard exhausted its fuel and fell into the Atlantic 228 miles off the Florida coast, the Defense Department said. The firing was called "extremely successful."

The slender missile, 72-feet long and shaped like a huge rifle cartridge, streaked straight up through drizzling skies at a very high speed. Trailing orange and white flame, it remained visible only a few seconds before it vanished in a heavy cloudbank.

In Washington, Dr. Alan T. Waterman, director of the National Science Foundation, called the test "reassuring." He said it gave "a basis for confidence" that the United States will be able to boost

Fleet Given Atom Charge To Stop Subs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Defense Department came up today with a new answer to Russia's growing submarine menace—an atomic depth charge.

The weapon already is in the hands of some Atlantic Fleet units.

TOP SECRET

Defense Secretary Neil McElroy and Navy Secretary Thomas S. Gates announced the hitherto top secret weapon, calling it "an important answer" to a Soviet submarine fleet that now numbers about 450 vessels and is growing rapidly.

Gates said that weapon "Betty," as the lethal charge has been designated, will "greatly extend the kill range" over depth bombs loaded with conventional explosives.

SMALL CASE

The nuclear depth charge has been squeezed into a metal case small enough to be carried by a tracker antisubmarine aircraft that operate from small, escort carriers assigned to antisubmarine warfare units of the fleet.

The Navy also is working on a nuclear depth charge that can be launched from surface vessels, such as destroyers. The surface version is known unofficially as "Lulu."

curb. He said Evans and Little got the other $10.

Explaining to the jurors that they could consider verdicts on the crimes of murder or involuntary manslaughter, Judge Pyle told the jury Evans "could not be relieved" of guilt for Pursley's death just because the professor did not obtain medical treatment for his injuries promptly enough.

Explaining that malice must be in the case for it to be murder, Judge Pyle said this "may arise from wanton or reckless disregard for human life."

Evans was the first of the three youths to be tried for the slaying of Pursley, who died July 20 after brain surgery.

Style King Dior Dies On Vacation

MONTECATINI, Italy, Thursday, Oct. 24 (AP)—Christian Dior, for years the biggest name in fashion design, died here early today of a heart seizure. He had been holidaying for the past week in northern Italy.

His greatest coup was the "New Look" in 1947, when he seized and held for France the style leadership of the world after it had threatened to pass to the United States in the post-war years.

LEGION OF HONOR

The French government recognized in him a national asset and awarded him the Legion of Honor.

After he left skirts down in 1947, he turned to men's wear and emphasized the bosom, 1954, stylized his suits and he could do anything with fashions.

Because his business sense matched his creative genius, Dior made fashions pay off handsomely. His business crested 17 million dollars in 1953.

The 52-year-old, small balding Dior, who clung to conservative suits and ties for his own attire, died at the Hotel La Place where he had come a few days ago.

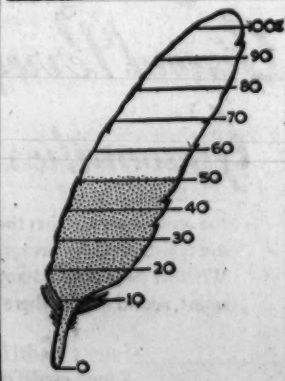

DINED WITH FRIEND

The Rev. Giulio Celli, the parish priest who administered the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church, said Dior dined with a woman friend last night at the hotel and became ill during the night.

Dr. Dino Salabrini of Montecatini joined a French physician at Dior's deathbed and gave the cause of death as a heart seizure.

Split Purse-o-nality

SOUTH SHIELDS, England, Oct. 23 (UP)—A juvenile court here recently sent a 16-year-old boy to a psychiatrist in an effort to find out what made him steal $6.86 from a purse. The boy was back in court yesterday, charged with stealing $2.80 from the psychiatrist.

INCHING UP—Contributions to the Tri-County Community Chest passed the halfway mark to the $2,335,098 goal Wednesday. The total to date is $1,200,183, or 51.4 per cent of funds needed to keep Red Feather agencies in Fulton, DeKalb and Cobb running next year. Red Feather volunteers still hope to make their goal by next Tuesday.

New Yorker To Return to Law Practice

By ANTHONY LEWIS

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—Herbert Brownell Jr., an original member of the Eisenhower cabinet, resigned today as attorney general. He will be succeeded by his deputy, William P. Rogers.

President Eisenhower accepted the resignation in a letter addressed "Dear Herb" and expressing "very deep regret." Brownell said he would return to private law practice with the New York firm with which he was associated for 25 years, Lord, Day & Lord.

The President will give Rogers a recess appointment, with the formal nomination going up to the Senate for confirmation at the start of the new session next January. He is to take over as attorney general in about two weeks.

NO CHANGE

Rogers has been deputy attorney general during Brownell's entire term of office, since 1953. There has been no hint of disagreement between them. Nevertheless, the change is of great potential importance—at least politically.

The political significance lies in the fact that Rogers is an intimate friend of Vice President Nixon. It was to Rogers' home that Nixon went the night President Eisenhower suffered his heart attack, Sept. 24, 1955.

Rogers will almost certainly be a leading strategist in the anticipated Nixon campaign for the Republican presidential nomination in 1960. Rogers' status as attorney general can hardly hurt Nixon's already excellent chance.

In personality Brownell and Rogers are entirely different.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Brownell, 53 years old, has the cautious approach traditionally ascribed to lawyers. He is introspective, at his best behind the scenes, at his least comfortable in congressional hearings or press conferences.

At 44, Rogers is a friendly extrovert, at ease in the rough and tumble of congressional investigations and extremely popular with the press. He has blonde hair and is youthful in appearance.

While Brownell's relations with

Stocks Rally Is Briskest Since November of '29

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—A skyrocketing stock market made its biggest one-day advance in 28 years today as buying orders swept into Wall Street from all sections of the country.

Major stocks jumped $1 to $10 a share and the quoted value of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange boomed an estimated $7,200,000,000.

The Dow Jones industrial average gained 17.34 points, closing only 1.46 off the day's high. This was the biggest one day advance since mid-November of 1929.

State Politicos Cheer As Brownell Resigns

By WILLIAM M. BATES

Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell's resignation touched off rejoicing among Georgia political leaders Wednesday, but for some the elation was tempered by fear of his successor.

Gov. Griffin said that any change "will have to be an improvement," while others cautioned that the successor, Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, is close to Vice President Nixon and an apt student of Brownell.

Griffin said he was "encouraged and delighted" by Brownell's resignation. He said he did not know the qualifications of Rogers, "but it will have to be an improvement."

Rep. James C. Davis said Brownell's departure from the Eisenhower cabinet may mean the Republicans "have decided to clean house and try to get back

BROWNELL OFFERS SEAT TO HIS SUCCESSOR
Deputy Attorney General Rogers Appointed by Ike

Rogers and Brownell See Issues 'Eye-to-Eye'

By ALBERT RILEY

Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—Although Southern senators and congressmen undoubtedly will hail the departure of Attorney General Brownell from the Eisenhower cabinet, they can take small comfort in the fact that William P. Rogers is slated to succeed Brownell.

Referring to Brownell Wednesday, Rogers declared: "In all major matters, we have seen eye to eye."

CLOSE TO NIXON

That could be an extremely significant statement for Southerners, because on the civil rights issue Brownell long has been an anathema to Southern lawmakers and was generally credited with master-minding President Eisenhower's use of federal troops to enforce school integration at Little Rock.

On the basis of his past association and record, Rogers likely can be counted on to take just as strong a pro-integration stand as did Brownell.

For one thing, Rogers is very close to Vice President Nixon. And for another, it was Rogers who worked hand in glove with the proponents of civil rights legislation in the last session of Congress.

ERASED DIXIE GAINS

Rogers was credited by informed sources with drafting the so-called compromise jury trial amendment which Congress finally adopted to the civil rights bill. This compromise largely dissipated the gains Southerners won in the Senate with the original jury trial proviso.

The sharp, 44-year-old lawyer who is slated to head the Justice Department is known as one of "Tom Dewey's boys," along with Brownell and James C. Hagerly, White House press secretary.

All three were closely associated with the onetime New York governor and presidential candidate. Rogers was an aide to Dewey when Dewey was a crime-busting attorney general.

In 1952 he was one of the strategists who wrested the Republican presidential nomination to Dwight Eisenhower from his chief rival, the late Sen. Robert A. Taft.

During the 1952 campaign he traveled with Richard M. Nixon, then the GOP vice presidential

Faubus in No Rush To Accept Militia

Might Want Conditions On U.S. Return of Troops

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 23 (AP)—Gov. Faubus today said he had not accepted back into the Arkansas National Guard 8,500 troops being released from federal service in the Little Rock integration controversy.

"It may be that I do not have to accept them for them to return to their previous state status ... but if I do have to accept them I haven't done so," Faubus said.

"I might want to put several conditions on their return," Faubus told a news conference. "I might want the Guard back all at the same time just like they were taken away from me. There also may be some other conditions, I am not yet ready to name."

The Guard, once used by Faubus to prevent attendance of nine Negro children at Little Rock Central High School, was called into federal service Sept. 24, the same day that paratroopers were sent here from Ft. Campbell, Ky. Since then the troops have been used to protect the Negroes. Last week the regular troop strength was reduced, and the Army now is in the process of releasing all but about 1,800 of the Guardsmen from federal service.

Faubus reiterated his previous contention that the Guard was illegally federalized since it was without his permission, and he brought up one new angle.

He said he had refused to retransmit an order to federalize the Guard.

This was news to reporters. Faubus at the time was attending the Southern Governors Conference at Sea Island, Ga. He flew back as the troops were arriving here.

The governor said the federalization order was transmitted by Maj. Gen. Sherman T. Clinger, Arkansas adjutant general, who otherwise "might have been court-martialed."

Faubus said there was no one in command of the state guard "to accept these men back on state duty."

Clinger is still on federal status. Col. William Page, the assistant adjutant general, had been released from federal service and presumably could sign papers putting the Guard back on a state level.

Nodding to E. Germany To Cut U.S. Aid to Tito

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The United States tentatively has decided to trim American aid to Yugoslavia as a result of Marshal Tito's recognition of Communist East Germany, it was learned today.

The action was disclosed shortly after the State Department announced that it was "re-appraising" military and economic aid programs to the Tito government. Department spokesman Lincoln White said as far as he knew no "final" decision had been reached.

TENTATIVE DECISION

But it was learned elsewhere that a tentative decision had been made to cut back American help. It was possible that all aid could be cancelled in the final decision.

The "re-appraisal" announced by White presumably deals with specific steps to be taken and when.

Informed sources indicated the United States would halt all military aid not already in the pipeline, including jet planes. White said, however, that previously planned military shipments would be sent to the Tito government.

As for economic aid, indications were the United States would sell Yugoslavia more surplus farm products. But forthcoming negotiations on such help, scheduled for Belgrade, probably will be delayed. No date has been announced for the talks.

This country also has informed some of its Western allies about its thoughts on trimming the Yugoslavia program.

WHITE SAYS

White told reporters that the program was being re-appraised "in the light of recent developments." He said the "various aspects of this matter" would be discussed with the Yugoslavs, but he did not know exactly when.

While White did not say so specifically, the U.S. decision stemmed from Tito's recent recognition of the Communist puppet regime of East Germany. West Germany broke off diplomatic relations with Yugoslavia as a result.

Sgt. York, His Fortune Erased by Illness, Hopes Big Tax Claim Just Fades Away

PALL MALL, Tenn., Oct. 23 (AP)—The old soldier of Wolf River says he lives in hopes that though an $85,000 federal tax claim against him may never die, maybe it will just fade away.

At least, it appears Uncle Sam may have more trouble collecting from Sgt. Alvin C. York than York had in killing 25 Germans and capturing 132 more to win the Medal of Honor in World War I.

For one thing, York says he is virtually broke cash-wise and, as he put it, "What they want is money."

What's more, he says a 4-year illness plus his 69 years have left him too feeble for travel to a tax court hearing.

The tax claim, now seven years old, grew out of proceeds York got from a motion picture of his life.

The government contends that during the two years after the film was released in 1941, York received about $150,000 and failed to pay all taxes due.

York, who suffered a stroke four years ago, says the money is all gone now, exhausted by doctor and hospital bills.

"Oh, we may have $25 or $30 in the house, but that's all," Mrs. York told an interviewer. York said the tax claim against him stems from the fact the government viewed his proceeds from the movie as regular income rather than capital gains.

The suit has been scheduled for hearing several times in tax courts at Knoxville and Nashville, but always has been continued by the government.

Now it is set for airing at Nashville on Nov. 8. And though by his consent the hearing could go on without him, York says he has no intention of giving it.

York owns a 395-acre farm but he says his chief means of support is a $60-a-month disability pension plus an additional $10 as a Medal of Honor winner.

Hungarians Pay Tribute to Dead With Blackout

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 23 (AP)—The people of Hungary honored their dead today one year after the Hungarian revolt. They flocked to churches by thousands and tonight blacked-out their homes for an hour of symbolic darkness.

With the exception of the area near the churches, Budapest was a dead city in the evening after a day of normal activity.

Lights were switched off in apartments between 7 and 8 p.m. For one hour the city was covered by darkness with the exception of the lights in the streets.

This apparently was the people's answer to the government's ban against putting candles in the windows. They assumed no one could be arrested for not illuminating his flat.

Syria Snubs Saud's Bid To Mediate

DAMASCUS, Oct. 23 (AP)—Syria kept the Turkish issue boiling today, giving a formal rejection to King Saud's mediation offer and in effect accusing the U.S. Navy of sending planes deep over Syria. Maj. Gen. Afif Bixry, army chief of staff, said reconnaissance planes fly almost daily over the city of Homs, midway between Damascus and the Turkish frontier.

"We believe the planes are not coming from Turkey but from the (U.S.) 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean because this fleet is working together with the massing of Turkish troops on the Syrian border," he told reporters.

In Moscow, Izvestia published today a charge the United States is sending several squadrons of jet bombers to Turkey. Izvestia said the jet bombers are capable of delivering the atomic bomb and fly in from a U. S. base in Morocco.

In Washington, an Air Force spokesman said the Russian charges are false.

The Syrian government made clear it had ruled out Saudi Arabia's bid to mediate in the border crisis.

A Russian broadcast monitored in London by the BBC reported that Red Army Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky has been appointed commander of Soviet troops on the Russian-Turkish frontier. Rokossovsky has been a deputy Soviet defense minister since he was replaced as defense minister of Poland last autumn.

Lewd Movie Ring Smashed; 8 Are Arrested in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 23 (AP)—Police today smashed what they described as a Hollywood vice ring that made lewd movies in color, starring a beautiful model, and distributed them throughout the world.

Police Officer Charles S. Stanley said the roundup had ended with the arrest of eight persons, five of whom were secretly indicted by the Los Angeles County grand jury last Oct. 15.

Investigators said the model and star of the hot movies was Barbara Jean Elliot, 29, and that the pictures were made at a 10-acre estate in the exclusive Bel Air district.

The police described the operation as a "million-dollar vice ring" and said the films were sold at extremely high prices throughout the Orient, in large Eastern cities and to European capitals. The films, the officers said, rented in this area for from $25 to $250 a night.

Miss Elliot, the police reported, had her base of operations in a penthouse above Hollywood's Sunset Strip. The officer said evidence seized included two little red books with the names of 275 stage and screen personalities. Investigators said the ring provided dancing girls and other exotic entertainment to many of these persons.

Capt. Stanley said many of the movies in question were viewed by the grand jury during its secret investigation. He said death threats were made against some of the witnesses who appeared before the grand jury.

Investigators said they understood that young women who appeared in the obscene films received $100 a reel for their performances. Men who acted in them received less.

Those arrested are charged with conspiracy to make and sell lewd pictures.

In addition to Miss Elliot, those arrested are: Donald Harvey, 27, an actor; Donald De Munk, 39, electronics engineer; Jack Rappaport, 51, photographic equipment dealer; George W. Richter, 63, a film processor, and Richter's two sons, George Jr., 36, and Robert, 28; Lee Labeau, 42, also known as Leon Beeber, operator of a modeling photo studio.

Federal Reserve To Temper Cash Curbs

pressures appear much less formidable. The recent sharp decline in the stock market is probably the best evidence of this change. The stock market today regained some of its losses.

One official described the change in emphasis of Federal Reserve policy in these terms:

"We have, as everybody knows, been leaning against the wind rather heavily—the wind being, of course, boom and inflation. Now, I think we'll just lean a little less heavily, while not changing the direction in which we are leaning."

A basic change in policy would involve a reduction in the Federal Reserve's discount rate. This is the rate it charges member banks that are forced to borrow from the Federal Reserve. This is not yet in sight.

Instead, the change will be much more subtle. It will work something like this:

Each week the Federal Reserve buys or sells short-term government securities in the open market. A purchase adds funds to the banking system and a sale reduces them.

Also each week a number of other factors, not under the Federal Reserve's control, affect the funds (called reserves) available to the banks. Each week, therefore, the Federal Reserve sets a sort of target for the reserves it wants available for the banks and conducts its own buying or selling in such a way that, with the other factors, the desired result will be achieved as closely as possible.

Under the tight money policy as carried out up to now, the target each week appears to have been about $500,000,000 of "net borrowed reserves." This means that the banking system as a whole is forced to be a net borrower from the Federal Reserve by this amount. When the banks are this heavily in debt "at the Fed," they are restrained in their own lending and investing.

Under a policy of lessened pressure, the target for net borrowed reserves will presumably be set somewhat lower. This will correspondingly ease the pressure on the banks.

What the technicians call "the direction of error" is another way of describing the shift. In its weekly calculations, the Federal Reserve knows that it can never guess exactly what the impact on bank reserves of the forces other than its own operations will be. Thus its own buying and selling involves some estimating, and guesswork.

Still another way the Federal Reserve may carry out its shifted policy can be described in these terms.

Each fall there is a seasonal upturn in legitimate business borrowing from the banks, and hence a need for a seasonal increase in new funds supplied by the Federal Reserve. This year, as in every year, the Federal Reserve has made estimates of how much these seasonal needs will require in the way of new federal reserve funds.

So far this fall the upturn in loans has been well under seasonal expectations. The Federal Reserve may, however, go right on pumping its estimated amount of new funds into the market. The resultant easing would then be described as the market "easing itself"—that is, the demand for credit would be less, so money became easier.

Country Relieved As Brownell Quits

Resignation of Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. will bring a sigh of relief from many parts of the country, especially from the South. An original member of the Eisenhower "team," Brownell's manipulation of the attorney general's office for obvious political purposes long ago made his usefulness to the country and to the administration a doubtful matter.

Although publicly the President expressed deep regret over the resignation, he, too, must have been relieved. Regardless of one's personal views about the Little Rock situation, Brownell was the chief architect of the policies for which the President must answer to Congress—a Congress which has demonstrated it can wreck the President's programs.

Brownell gets much of the credit, too, for the whole desegregation muddle which has so divided the country and diverted its energies into negative channels destructive of the common good. While his resignation will not change the Supreme Court decision, it is hoped that his successor, William P. Rogers, will not be so intent on politics and will be more concerned with sensible approaches other than force.

Brownell was responsible for misleading the President on the explosive and dangerous Civil Rights Bill in the last Congress. Until its real purposes were explained to him by Sen. Russell and others, Mr. Eisenhower had only a vague understanding of its real scope.

There may be some significance in the fact the resignation comes only a few months before the New York gubernatorial race. Although Brownell has denied any ambitions to seek the GOP nomination, he will be in a good position to do so.

Whatever may be Brownell's future, the Eisenhower administration will be stronger without him, especially with a Democratic Congress dominated by Southerners and others whom the attorney general so recklessly daubed with the "treason" smear in two campaigns.

In naming Rogers, let's hope that the President has chosen a man who not only can establish better relations with Congress but one who will not add to the divisive trend which threatens to wreck Eisenhower's second term.

Baptist College Plans Mean Much to Georgia

The college which the Atlanta Assn. of Baptist Churches plans to establish in this area will be a bright star in the organization's large crown.

Several possible sites are being studied. Out of those under consideration it would be particularly significant and pleasing if the final choice should be the tract, located near Georgia Baptist Hospital, which will be cleared of slums under the urban renewal program.

Thus there would be two great Baptist institutions in that section to symbolize the new set of standards for the redeveloped area as it moves toward a better, brighter and happier tomorrow. The Baptists, too, should find such an arrangement advantageous.

The college will be a major asset to the Atlanta area and to Georgia. Wholehearted support should be accorded the church group in ironing out final details, acquiring land and the many other things to be done before construction can begin.

United Nations Hailed On Twelfth Birthday

Today is the twelfth birthday of the United Nations. As on its natal day, the world is still in crisis. The organization has not been able to accomplish all the goals set for it. But there is no war and in that lies the U.N.'s greatest victory.

In practice the United Nations has become a great world forum for mobilizing public opinion. It has no power to levy taxes, to make laws, to issue currency or to draft soldiers. Its greatest contribution to world peace and to eventual settlement of international problems is its power to persuade.

During the past year, the United Nations prevented what might have become a major war through acting quickly and decisively in the Middle East and Suez crises. It succeeded in clearing the blocked Suez Canal in record time and established the first United Nations police force along the borders of Israel and Egypt. The latter is in the nature of a pilot project, offering vast opportunities for development of a world emergency force to prevent armed hostilities.

It is charged in some quarters that the United Nations is really a U.S. agency. In a sense, that is true. It is American in birth and conception. It has served as a forum for expression of U.S. goals and ideals.

In 1945, World War II cost each American $633.57. Last year the United Nations cost each American citizen less than 50 cents—less than a penny a week. That seems a small price to pay for insurance for peace and to build toward ultimate security from nuclear destruction.

On its twelfth birthday, the United Nations continues to grow in stature. As imperfect as it is, it offers the best hope for eventual understanding among all countries that war offers no solution to the ills of mankind.

Kaolin's Big 'Whiteway' Can Be Made Brighter

Washington County, a hub of Georgia's multimillion-dollar kaolin production area, is in the midst of a three-day festival which salutes its industrial clay as the "Whiteway to Prosperity."

There is good reason for pointing with pride to Georgia's kaolin mines. This state is the nation's largest producer of the type of kaolin the paper industry employs as a filler and coating. Other users include the pottery and rubber industries, refractory manufacturers and producers of adhesives, cement, insecticides, linoleum, paint and oilcloth.

Kaolin is a potentially powerful lure that should be exploited to the fullest in the state's drive for new industries. An estimated 90 per cent of the clay mined in Georgia is being exported to manufacturers elsewhere. It would be to the advantage of industrial consumers and to the state's economy for plants, especially the secondary ones that supply the large manufacturers, to be located near the source of material for their finished product.

The festival at Sandersville can further light the area's whiteway to prosperity through emphasizing the need for action in collecting these additional dividends from kaolin that the state is missing.

Forums Seek Answers To Problems of Aged

Forums on gerontology to be held Oct. 27-29 at the University of Georgia hold promise of supplying some of the answers to the mounting problem of helping older people lead happier, more useful lives.

On the whole, workable programs for the aged have lagged considerably behind the need. There is a lot of catching up to be done and the forums at Athens could provide a necessary impetus.

Sponsors of the event, the Georgia Gerontology Society and the Continuing Education Center, have arranged sessions aimed at providing solutions at the local level. Ideas will be pooled and suggestions made for hometown programs.

There also should be some meaty findings in reports from six committees which have been studying various aspects of the situation.

Most older people still want to serve their communities, to engage in creative and social activities. Practical measures must be evolved to allow them to do so.

Dr. McClain's Book Is A Splendid Contribution

In early November Dr. Roy O. McClain's book, "This Way Please," will be published and on sale in the bookstores of the nation.

Dr. McClain, the respected and beloved pastor of Atlanta's First Baptist Church, has in the few years of his pastorate made a significant contribution to community and state life. His book will add to his influence and prestige and also will provide comfort and thought to the many who will read his book.

Atlanta is known as a city of vigorous church life. A number of our pastors have written significant, sought-after books. Chief among them are Dr. Charles Allen, Dr. Louie D. Newton, Dr. Pierce Harris, Dean Raimundo De Ovies, and Dr. McClain. These books have helped make religion more meaningful to the city and state.

Publication of a book, as the authors would be the first to admit, is not at all a prerequisite to a successful ministry. Pastors of many of our great churches are not writers. But they and all others welcome these written contributions which are of aid to all denominations and all Christians. They do testify to the fact that Atlanta is a city of churches with great emphasis on religious life.

'Visit the Mountains and Gaze Where God Splashes Joyous Color on the Face of Fall'

Clayville, Va.—For several days we have been looking down on the world and when we looked up to Heaven we were glad to be in the land of the living. No, we were not in a Sputnik. We were atop the Skyline Drive.

As we drove along in the early morning we knew there was a God who made the mountains, who painted them in gorgeous colors. The inner man was satisfied as the beauty of these vistas reached the soul.

Those of you who have never enjoyed the grandeur of the Skyline Drive as the sensitive fingers of fall trace their breath-taking patterns on the trees and bushes owe it to yourselves to take in this magnificent spectacle.

Fire flashes from ridge to ridge as the joyous colors dance and glisten in the autumnal sun.

Now is the time we recommend a visit to Skyline Drive to those who would recapture the beauty and the message of nature and wish to be near to God. We saw a sermon on the mount.

However, if you all can't come to the Skyline Drive, don't forget that autumn is busy with its paint and brush in north Georgia mountains. They, too, are beautiful.

'GOP, Democrats Are Like Peas in a Pod'

Quitman — The article entitled "Where Does South Go From Here?" by William M. Bates, is not the true sentiment of the down-to-earth grass roots of any state, let alone the "lower South."

In my travels up and down the East Coast from Maine to Florida, to western Texas and to Chicago, I talked with many people about a third party. So I agree a third party isn't wanted at this time.

A third party is not needed now but most everybody I talked with wants a "Second Party." These people know and realize that today there is but one party in the United States. Two names but only one party.

Today things boil down to this: We must have a "Second Party" that will adhere to the U.S. Constitution, living under, upholding and defending this precious document and everything it stands for.

Atlanta—A slogan I am beginning to use is this: "We must have a Southerner in the White House." It can be done.

In my opinion President Eisenhower is no longer worthy of respect from his fellow men.

Like John the Baptist of old, we, the white race, seem to have become just a voice crying in the wilderness.

Atlanta Asks Why Sudden Gas Hike?

Atlanta—It certainly seems that the thought of giving away one penny on each gallon of gas, even though it was a penny contributed to the public, was too much for the gasoline companies, and so in asking the public to give a penny to the Community Chest the gasoline companies had to have three cents.

Isn't it about time an appropriate government agency investigated the miraculous fact that all gasoline companies at the same moment decided that the price of gasoline was insufficient for the magnificent product which each of the companies produce, and immediately and cooperatively and spontaneously they each of their own accord raised the price four cents? J. J. SMITH.

Taking Chances On the Sputnik

You can't keep a satellite up forever. Nor an urge for gambling down. A friend who works in an office where the bent is toward taking chances says the gang is getting up a pool on Sputnik. You start out with say 365 days in the hat and draw a number. If the Red ball falls on your day, you get the kitty. If you want to make it hard, you can play it two ways—when and where.

An editorial associate says on one thing you can count. The satellite cannot come down on the United States or its territories. For the scientists say when the satellite descends into the heavier layers of atmosphere it will disintegrate. And that, my friends, is strictly contrary to the Supreme Court edict.

Main Street Saint Is More Effective

One of the most fascinating saints in Christian history is Simeon Stylites of Syria. This venerated fifth century Christian mounted a pillar where he remained for a lifetime. He descended only when a new and higher pillar had been constructed for him. For most of 68 years he lived atop a tower.

From that height he occasionally preached and up there he meditated on the things of the spirit. It is said that Simeon's son, when he was only 5 years old, went up to the pillar's top where he stayed for most 70 years. Long afterwards this practice was followed by the so-called pillar saints.

I think all of us can appreciate Simeon's motives in wanting somehow to rise above the world and its wickedness. Above the levels of the world a man may meditate and pray without the interruptions and temptations of the flesh. Something of the same achievement is found in present-day monastic orders where devout persons separate themselves from the world and learn to attune their lives to the Lord.

Yet I am sure that the life of the pillar saint is hardly possible for most men nor do I feel that such behavior would be desirable. That man who most perfectly serves the Lord would seem rather to be the person who seeks and follows God's will in the midst of an evil generation.

Jesus did not separate Himself from the world and its confusing and often hectic circumstances. He did not live in quiet isolation. He did not shun the world of men. When a man surrenders himself to God he may thereafter isolate himself from evil or he may identify himself more particularly with the needs and concerns of men. To isolate oneself to a pillar or to a spiritual haven may bring greater spirituality and the opportunity to discern new truth which other men may somehow share. This is the way of self discipline and renunciation and I honor those who follow this practice.

The second way represents service. As a Christian a man remains in the world but is not of the world. His ministries are in a worldly environment which he hopes by the grace of God to transform into a godly environment.

I expect the Christian who remains in the world faces the greatest hazards and temptations. His loyalty is to God but the pressures of the world ever urge him to return to worldliness. How can a man remain faithful when on every hand the voices of sin beckon and tantalize? I expect that the man who remains loyal is he who aggressively serves. Services strengthen resolution.

Few of us are called to become pillar saints. Most of us are called to be Main Street saints. On Main Street we can accomplish God's will and in our effort discover new visions of the Lord.

Ike and Macmillan Reinforce Alliance

WASHINGTON—British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and President Eisenhower, as they began their highly important talks at the White House, found themselves in substantial agreement on what we are up against in new Soviet policy and tactics. That is something. It may well be enough to enable them to do what each really wants to do: namely recreate the close Anglo-American military and political command which prevailed during the war.

The way Khrushchev now is rattling his missiles and his Sputniks, their conviction is that just as this kind of alliance was essential to winning World War II it is essential to averting World War III.

It is too early to say how far Eisenhower and Macmillan will be able to go but even at this stage in the talks it is clear they are agreed on the following premises:

That we are at the beginning of the most dangerous period of the cold war during which Kremlin diplomacy will get colder and rougher.

That with the lead which the Soviets have achieved in science and in missiles Moscow is prepared to pursue the most venturesome methods in an effort to: (1) create trouble for the West as in the Mideast; (2) scare the uncommitted nations into the "protective" arms of the Kremlin; (3) break up NATO, and (4) force the West to accept as unalterable every inch of territory it has put under its heel since the war.

That the greatest danger is not a Soviet desire to risk war but that Khrushchev may get so cocksure and reckless that he will underestimate the West's determination to resist.

It will take more than these personal talks to bring about the wide-ranging working agreements between the two governments which Eisenhower and Macmillan have in mind. But such an agreement is in the making and it will have these objectives:

To pool the knowledge and intelligence of all the NATO scientists.

To equip NATO with nuclear weapons and with missiles as essential to deter Soviet aggression against any NATO country from Norway to Turkey, both of whom Moscow has been trying to intimidate.

To widen the base of common foreign policy by fuller consultation among all the NATO countries.

What makes the cold war more dangerous is that Khrushchev is doing today what the United States refrained from doing between 1945 and 1951 during the period we held a monopoly on atomic weapons. The United States did not brandish the atomic bomb; it did not threaten that "bombs would go off" if the Soviet Union did not free the satellite peoples of Eastern Europe. It did not use the atomic bomb to turn back the invasion of South Korea.

Right now Khrushchev is brandishing the works, including the moon, and there is no reason to expect that he will sheathe his threats until it is evident that they are not going to scare anybody or win anybody.

Thomas L. Stokes

Rabid Rulers Risk Mankind's Destiny

WASHINGTON—Once again we are reminded by recent developments in the field of rockets and missiles and by the Russian satellite how new advances in science, harnessed with the atomic power of destruction, could destroy our civilization. Out of that comes the big dilemma of our times: Control of these new forces is in the hands of a very few people at the top of a very few nations.

That means the fate of all of us is in the power of so few. This is so because the danger of these new forces makes secrecy imperative, giving to the few who are privileged to know these secrets a monopoly on decisions about their use.

This dilemma has long been familiar—in fact, so familiar that we are often inclined to overlook it. It can be refreshed and newly dramatized when observed in a different locale, such as Europe, and in a time of crisis such as grips the world again, as was the privilege of this reporter on a vacation trip just concluded.

In the space of a few days the headlines of newspapers in Europe recorded the series of events beginning with Russia's launching of an earth satellite and including the dispatch of troops by Egypt to Syria, charges by Russia that Turkey had aggressive designs on Syria, and the Khrushchev letter to labor leaders in Britain and elsewhere accusing their governments of aggressive designs in the Middle East.

This chain of events demonstrated that a handful of rulers in Russia were exploiting their earth satellite success to create a "crisis" in the always sensitive and always susceptible Middle East. That in turn provoked the ruling few in the Western federation of free nations. They reacted to produce more headlines and such concrete actions as the conferences here this week between President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain.

So once more the world was atremble and it all happened in just a few days.

It was all a game among the few at the top who hold our destiny in their hands—a game and a reckless gamble.

People, as people, are not mad at anybody to the point of wanting to go to war. They are tired of fighting and wanton destruction. The people are for the most part friendly and helpful to strangers in their midst, not only Americans but Europeans from other countries.

It is a sinister thing, indeed, when advances in science are now first assessed, fearfully, for their power to destroy and no longer happily hailed for the blessings they might bestow. We can conquer and harness the forces of nature, but we haven't yet learned to live together as nations, though all of us could live together peacefully as people.

Stories of Hamby Raid On 'Skin Game' Conflict

State and defense witnesses gave conflicting stories Wednesday on whether Atlanta Det. Lt. Clyde C. Hamby raided a Negro "skin game" in 1955 and allegedly pocketed the money he seized.

The trial also saw one state witness deny that the robbery took place, evoking a plea of "entrapment" from the state. A defense witness was served with a subpoena on another matter as he got off the witness stand.

Hamby took the stand in his own defense later in the day and emphatically denied that he took any money or even found any on the table.

The first three state witnesses, Jack Pitts, James Anderson and Jesse Williams, said Hamby raided the game on a Saturday morning at a "smoke shop" on Auburn avenue, NE.

They said the officer came in with pistol drawn, scooped up the money and a deck of cards and pocketed the money. They said he made no charges against any one.

TESTIMONY CHANGED

J. T. Stroud was the witness who the state contends gave testimony contrary to that which he gave before the grand jury last June 5. Stroud said he "didn't think" he told the grand jury he saw Hamby's gun or if he saw the officer take any money.

The state put up Sol. Gen. Paul Webb, who said that Stroud, after being promised immunity for the crime of gambling, gave testimony to the grand jury which was opposite to that he gave on the witness stand.

Three defense witnesses, Ezell Norris, Charlie Cato and Jordan Cash, said there wasn't any money on the table when Hamby came in.

LOOKOUT SIGNALS

They said a lookout man stationed outside the room where the game was going on rapped on the window signaling Hamby's approach and touched off a scramble of players and onlookers for the back door.

The witnesses said that when the rap came, everybody began snatching up the money on the table and running. "There couldn't have been any money because everybody he's snatching it," said Norris.

Norris, Cato and Cash said they "grabbed up all they could." Cash and Norris both admitted they left the room with more money than they had when the game began.

Cato, who denied under cross-examination that he was in the "numbers" business, was the witness who was served with a subpoena. Sol. Webb told Judge Moore his office "had been trying to get him for six months" for questioning.

Remainder of the more than two dozen witnesses were in support of Hamby's character. They included Police Chief Herbert Jenkins, Det. Supt. I. G. Cowan, several other police officers, and friends and neighbors of the officer.

Hamby, who took the stand shortly before both sides closed their evidence, began his statement by emphatically declaring, "Gentlemen, I'm not guilty of this."

Diphtheria Is Waning In Fayette

By CHARLES SOKPIN

The diphtheria outbreak in Fayette County apparently began to abate Wednesday.

As a State Health Department team organized a clinic in Fayetteville, Grady Hospital in Atlanta reported that there had been no new admissions since noon Wednesday. There were two deaths on Tuesday.

The critical list, which had four children on it Tuesday, was reduced to one, and officials said that the one child in critical condition was improving. The other children are in fair condition, with a few classified as poor.

One health official here said that the disease is behaving "as it was expected." Although there may be more deaths and more cases of diphtheria within the next few days, it is doubtful that the disease will get out of control, the official added.

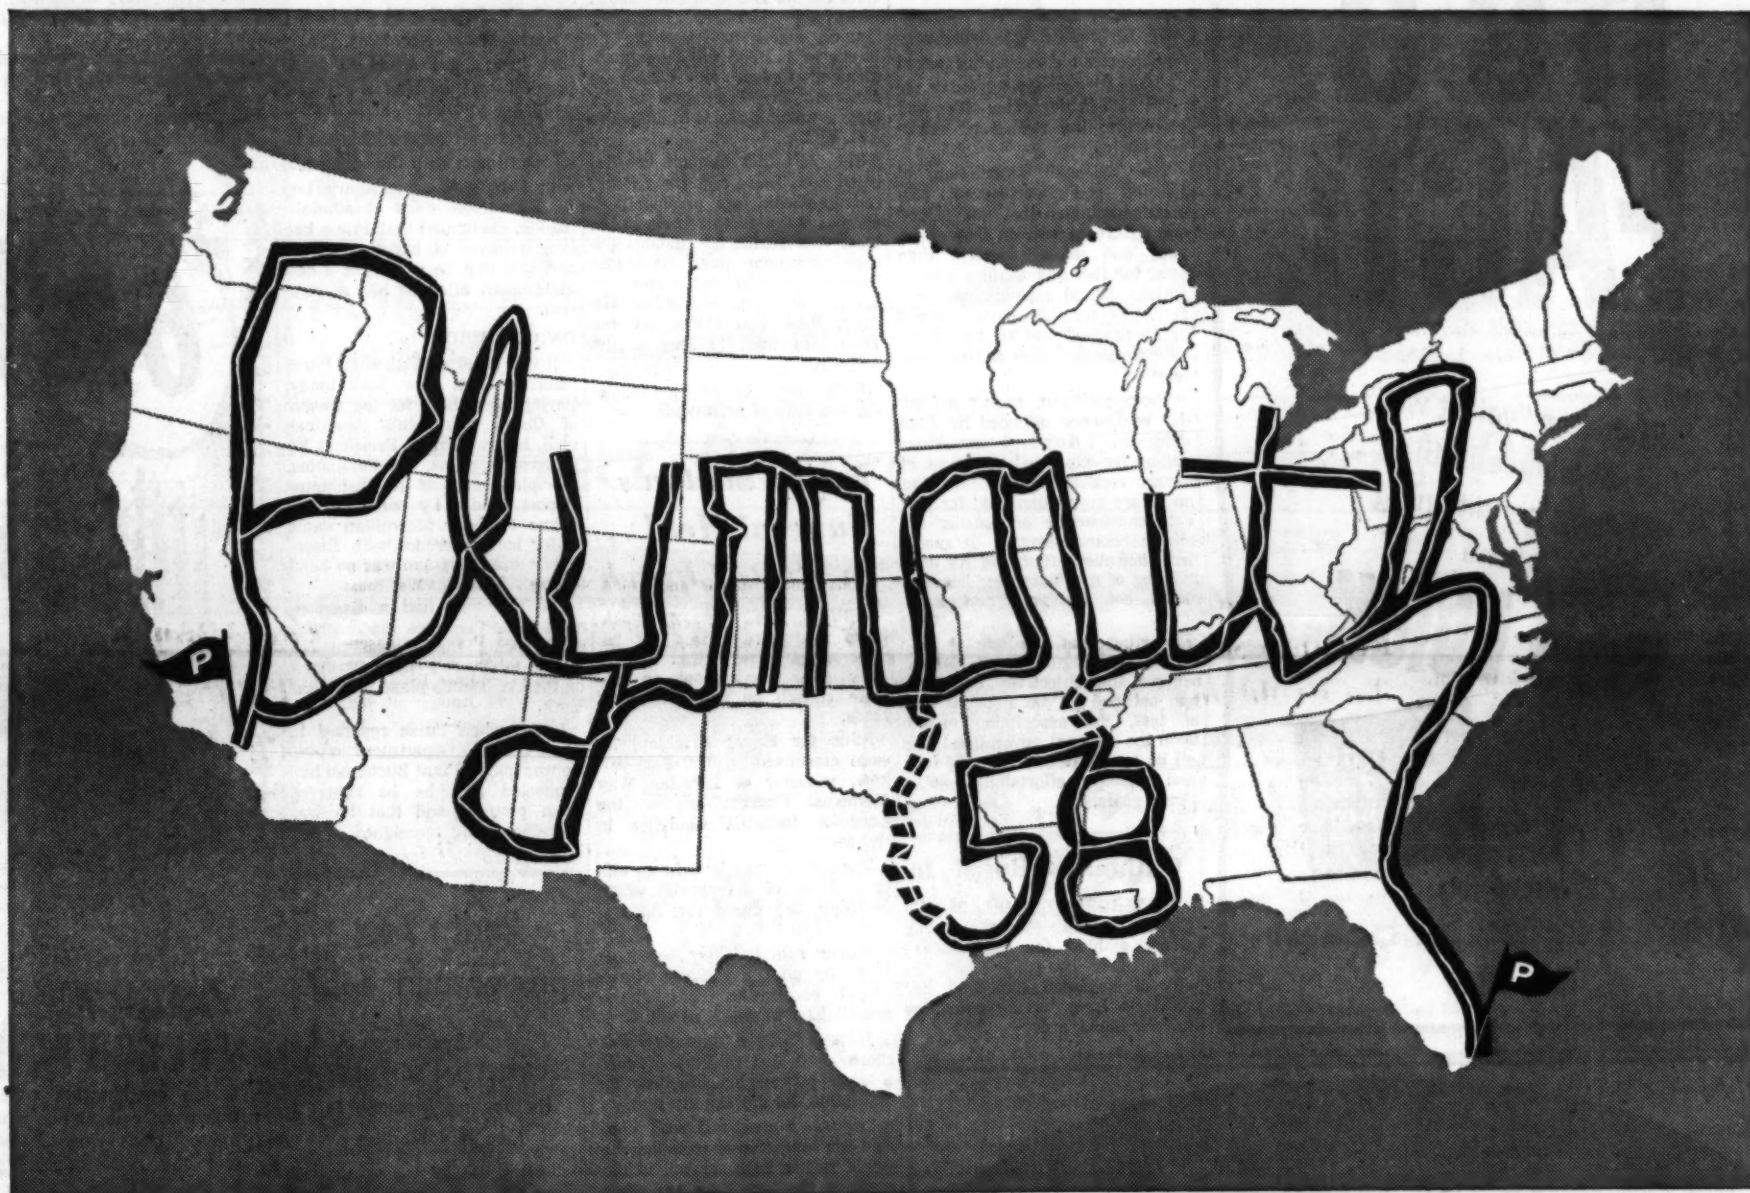

Evidently, the peak of the outbreak was reached Tuesday. The number of admissions to Grady Hospital reached 18, and two deaths occurred.

The state clinic established Wednesday in Fayetteville will be staffed by a physician, a nurse and two investigators.

They will screen possible cases of diphtheria, look up all contacts that the children may have had, and, in general, work with the county health officials in immunization.

Wholesale immunizations were given Wednesday in Fayetteville. A total of 2,100 white students received shots, and plans were made for immunization of Negro students on Thursday.

94.4 PROOF, 100% NEUTRAL SPIRITS DISTILLED FROM GRAIN, RENFIELD IMPORTERS LTD., NEW YORK

When you step into an auto showroom and plunk down hard-earned cash for a new car, you've got a right to more than just surface beauty. You've got a right to a car that's going to stand up under the punishment of day in, day out driving. A car that can go on delivering new-car comfort and economy season after season.

We designed the 1958 Plymouth to do just that. But we didn't settle for endurance in theory. We wanted proof.

See that route outlined above? It spells out "Plymouth '58" across 37 states. We ran a new Plymouth—one of the first stock production models to roll off the lines—across the route three times to roll up 58,000 miles in just 58 days. 1000 miles a day!

Here are just a few of the results. And even experienced automotive editors who were there when the Plymouth braked to the final halt were impressed by the results of this extraordinary test.

- Total miles traveled: 58,000
- Total days elapsed: 58
- Number of brake applications: 37,551

- Number of wheel revolutions: 47,732,000
- Number of engine tune-ups: 6

And for all its punishment, the test Plymouth still rode, handled and looked like new. The figures above are just a few of the hundreds collected during this trip. Your Plymouth dealer will be glad to furnish you with lots more details.

You'll be able to see and drive this amazing new Plymouth in a very few days. Wait for it. It's going to show you how much you can expect in a low-price car. And you can expect it only in Plymouth for '58!

Peak Asian Flu Wave Seen 8-10 More Weeks

By BESS FURMAN

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—A high and perhaps increased incidence of Asian influenza will continue for eight or ten weeks, the Public Health Service said today.

This analysis was reported by Surgeon General LeRoy E. Burney following a meeting with his advisory committee on the disease.

Dr. Burney assented when asked whether, in the long-run view, the epidemic was "about licked." He also said that no second wave of high incidence was expected.

On the advice of the committee, Dr. Burney will ask vaccine manufacturers to double the potency of the preventive injection doses. He will also urge persons who might suffer greatest from the disease—those with heart ailments, tuberculosis and diabetes—get vaccinated in the next few weeks.

The surgeon general said that the epidemic "undoubtedly was far less widespread, and resulted in less mortality," than would have happened if the health service and medical men had not spurred vaccine production. He said that the death rate would be "about as anticipated—much less than one per cent."

The manufacturer of vaccine, he said, is "way ahead of schedule."

He indicated that this would make it possible for the manufacturers to make the sought-for increase in potency. This increase will be from 200 to 400 chicken cell agglutination units, he said. This measurement was defined as the number of virus particles that will cling to a cell of chicken tissue.

Wife's Throwing Ruled Not Cruel — If She Misses

LONDON, Oct. 23 (AP)—A British judge held today that a wife who throws pots and pans at her husband isn't cruel — if she misses.

Judge Sir Seymour Karminski granted George Edward Sprigens, 36, a divorce on grounds of desertion by his 36-year-old wife Gladys.

But he rejected Sprigens' allegation of cruelty because, the judge said, although Mrs. Sprigens hurled almost every form of domestic utensil at him she almost invariably missed.

U.S. Asked Further Aid For Housing

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 23—Spokesmen for American communities asked the federal government today for more help in rebuilding cities and preventing the spread of suburban blight.

The National Association of Housing and Development officials complained that less money was spent last year on slum clearance and urban renewal than went for fish and wildlife conservation. Actual expenditures were $13,581,395 for slum clearance and urban renewal and $17,408,821 for wildlife conservation and fish restoration.

The association, ending a four-day conference attended by 1,100 delegates, adopted resolutions calling for expanded programs of urban renewal, public housing and more government aid for private construction of housing for middle-income families. It specified, however, that aid to the building of middle-income housing should not involve direct subsidies.

Asserting that the administration in Washington had failed to achieve the objectives Congress had outlined in the Housing Act of 1949, the association called upon the national government "in all its counterparts" to make new and stronger efforts to realize those goals.

Outhouses Ruled In

HILLSBORO, Ill., Oct. 23 (AP)—Circuit Judge Daniel Dailey struck a blow for old-fashioned ways today by ruling that the city of Nokomis, Ill., can't bar residents from having outhouses in their back yards.

Hoffa Ban Continued Until Trial

Election Rigged, Judge Declares

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—Federal District Judge F. Dickinson Letts ruled today that Teamsters Union bosses conspired to rig the recent convention which elected James R. Hoffa president of the union.

Letts issued a preliminary injunction continuing a ban on Hoffa and the other newly-elected union officers from taking office until there is a trial of the case on its merits.

The 82-year-old judge set Monday as the deadline for pre-trial motions and said he will fix the actual trial date as soon as possible thereafter.

FUNDS NOT TIED

In his order, Letts refused to put the giant union in the hands of court-appointed receivers and tie up its funds. This had been sought by the 13-man New York Teamsters group which took the case against Hoffa's election to court.

Martin O'Donoghue, the Teamsters attorney, bitterly protested the judge's findings. He said he would appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals tomorrow.

Judge Letts, O'Donoghue said, has practically branded as illegal the entire union convention and everything it did—without hearing proof.

MORE TROUBLE

Even more trouble seemed in store for the Teamsters tomorrow, when the AFL-CIO Executive Council meets to follow up its threat to suspend the 1½-million-member union on corruption charges. The Teamsters is the biggest union in the 15-million-man AFL-CIO.

The AFL-CIO Council has labeled both Hoffa and Dave Beck, retiring Teamsters president, as corrupt and unfit to remain in the labor movement. Its findings followed testimony given the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee headed by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark). Beck and Hoffa say the Teamsters want to stay in the AFL-CIO.

Letts said in his decision following two days of arguments:

Negro Sexton's Funeral Held In White Church

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 23 (AP)—A Negro sexton, analogized as "a great good man," was buried today after services at an all-white church he had served 32 years.

Rites for Hayes Brinkley, 75, were conducted by Dr. Carl Adkins, minister of Dauphin Way Methodist Church, one of the largest Methodist Churches in the deep South.

The service was held in an older building of the church which Brinkley had cared for since it was built in 1925.

Adkins said Brinkley was "beloved by all the children of the church and the entire neighborhood." The minister added:

"I never saw a man who was more loyal and faithful. If ever a man poured his life into an institution, he did exactly that."

"He was a great and good man. And for him, it was true that he would rather be a servant in the house of the Lord than any other thing."

Palbearers were officials and members of the church staff. Brinkley, who died Monday after a long illness, had no known relatives.

Negroes who attended the service sat in groups by themselves.

Non-Reds Head San Marino

SAN MARINO, Oct. 23 (AP)—For the first time since World War II, this ancient hill-top republic today chose two non-Communists as the heads of government.

San Marino's Grand Council (parliament) elected Marino Valdes Franciose, Social Democrat, and Federico Micheloni, Independent Socialist, to serve as Captains Regent for the next six months.

Graham Pats Ram—From Across Fence

MONTREAT, N.C., Oct. 23 (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham entertained for New York today where he will deliver a series of talks—but not before he stopped to pat a reckless ram who butted the Evangelist down a mountain last week.

Graham, still limping from the ram's attack that sent him over a ridge into a pool of water, fed the ram a stalk of celery and patted him—from the other side of a fence.

RODE COLUMBINE

Protocol's Chief Ousts Top Aide

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—Victor Purse, one of the State Department protocol officers who traveled with Queen Elizabeth on her recent visit, was removed from his job today by his boss, Wiley T. Buchanan Jr.

Apparently a clash of personalities was the reason. There had been reports for some months that Purse, deputy chief of protocol, and Buchanan, the chief, were not getting on well together.

CRITICIZED HIS WORK

According to these reports Buchanan considered Purse sometimes undignified in the performance of his formal duties and Purse regarded Buchanan as excessively formal and officious.

Purse would say tonight only that "I've been asked to leave protocol and to take some new assignment."

State Department officials who were in touch with Buchanan and with Deputy Undersecretary Loy W. Henderson, chief of administration, confirmed that Purse had been relieved of his protocol job and said that he would get a new assignment after he has a vacation.

ON COLUMBINE

It was reported that when Purse returned from New York today, having been there for the windup of Queen Elizabeth's American visit, he traveled on President Eisenhower's plane, the Columbine. The plane arrived at Washington airport shortly before British Prime Minister Macmillan came in for his conference with Eisenhower and Buchanan was on hand to meet Macmillan.

The two men had a disagreement when they met, the reported cause being that Buchanan objected to Purse's having ridden on the President's plane from New York.

Later, when Purse reported in at his State Department office, he was notified that Buchanan had requested that he be removed from protocol and that he was therefore being reassigned.

Levittown Writ Aimed At Violence

Would Protect Negro Tenant

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Oct. 23 (AP)—The Bucks County Court today issued a temporary injunction in an effort to prevent future violence at Levittown and set Monday for a hearing on a plea for a permanent writ.

The court acted after a petition was filed with it by State Atty. Gen. Thomas D. McBride. The court specified that those named in the injunction should not carry out any acts that would damage the property of William J. Myers, the first Negro resident there.

After Myers, his wife and three children occupied their newly purchased home in Levittown last August, there were demonstrations for nine straight nights by mobs shouting insults and tossing rocks. A state police guard has been on duty outside Myers' home since then.

In his petition, McBride named Eldred Williams, James E. Newell, Howard H. Bencic, Mrs. Agnes Bencic, John R. Bentley, David L. Heller, John Thomas Barabaz, Williams and Bencic were held in $500 bail each last night on charges of malicious mischief in connection with a cross burning incident at Levittown Sept. 22.

McBride said in his petition these named entered into "an unlawful, malicious and evil conspiracy" in an effort to force the Myers family to move out.

In the temporary injunction, the court held that those named should abstain from:

Burning fire crosses, distributing inflammatory literature, setting off firecrackers or attempting in any manner to intimidate members of the Myers family.

3 Families Get House Certificates

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Three Negro families, displaced by expressway developments, are the first to be issued certificates by the housing relocation office, Robert Waller, director, said Wednesday.

Waller said Charlie and Betty Radford, now living at 97 Richardson St., SW; Edith Jackson, now living at 1469 Moseley Pl., SW; and Corinne J. Stovall, now residing at 68 Fitzgerald St., SE, now have certificates entitling them to obtain loans insured up to $9,000 if they buy new homes. Under the law, they each can buy any acceptable home and repay the loans within 40 years.

The office is being managed by the Atlanta Housing Authority, acting as the city's agent in finding homes for persons displaced by governmental action, including a projected $18,000,000 urban renewal program. The office is in the lobby of the first floor of the city hall.

"We are now in business," Waller said. "We hope to perform a real service in assisting those displaced to find new and acceptable housing within their means."

Schools Visited

Atlanta businessmen Wednesday visited Atlanta schools. Scores of business and industrial leaders inspected schools as a part of the Education-Business Day annual observance. Last year, teachers visited various business leaders. The visitors participated as observers and as participants in classroom activities.

Gilliam To Speak

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the Aldermanic Board's police committee, will address the Bill Hill Section Civic Club at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 5, at the Ben Hill Health Center on Campbellton road. Thomas E. Watson, president, says the organization is spearheading a drive for improved police protection.

GSC Expansion

Plans for expansion of the Georgia State College of Business Administration towards Decatur street were announced at a conference between officials of the institution and the city.

Noah Langdale, president, said there are no immediate expansion plans but when they come they will expand the educational facility towards Decatur street. Hartsfield promised that the city will take all possible steps to improve Decatur street during the discussions held in the mayor's office. Langdale expressed his appreciation for the proffered cooperation.

Decatur Urges

Nursing Home

Fire Crackdown

The Decatur city commission has approved a letter to the state fire marshal urging "the utmost expediency" in enforcing fire regulations at a Decatur nursing home.

Chairman J. F. Redding said he had been told by the home's manager, Mrs. Ruth Cannon, that "the good Lord won't let me have a fire." Mrs. Cannon said she is the only one who works at the home, situated at 425 W. Howard St., Redding added.

"I go to sleep when they (the boarders) go to bed," Mrs. Cannon was quoted.

Commissioner Schley Howard said Mrs. Cannon would not be able to handle an emergency. He said 17 of the home's 27 boarders live upstairs.

The subject came up as the commission deferred an application by Mrs. Cannon to establish a boarding house next door to the nursing home.

Opening lead: Queen of hearts.

The holdup play is one which we normally associate with the development of a hand at no trump. However, the occasions for its use at suit play are quite numerous.

Today's hand is culled from a very enlightening collection of bridge hands offered by C. Jack Donney, and recently released by the Barclay Bridge Supply Co. of Long Island City, N.Y.

The bidding is more or less routine and South, after receiving a free raise, is reasonably well justified in jumping to game.

The opening lead is, of course, the queen of hearts, and if declarer is minded to play for the maximum, he may learn to regret it. If he takes the first lead, draws trumps and attempts to establish the diamond suit, he will meet with disaster.

West will win the diamond finesse with his king and shift back to hearts to put his partner in with the king of that suit. Now a club lead through declarer's king-jack nets the defenders two more tricks and sets declarer down to defeat.

Cautious play at trick one will

DeKalb Tax Bill Comes With Expenditure Outline

DeKalb residents who receive tax bills this week and next also will receive a pamphlet outlining the expenditure of their tax dollars in the county.

Prepared at the request of the DeKalb Board of County Commissioners and the Board of Education, the folder explains that "appraisals are made and assessments determined by the Board of Tax Assessors on approximately 90,000 parcels (residential, commercial, industrial and farm properties) and on 3,000 commercials (business and professional inventories, equipment and machinery).

The pamphlet takes as an illustration a home valued at $15,000 that "is not located in an incorporated area, nor in the fire and/or sanitary district. Personal properties, such as auto, furniture, appliances and other items are not included."

Such a home valued at $15,000 would have an assessment for tax purposes of $7,500, minus a home-stead exemption of $2,000, leaving a taxable balance of $5,500.

From taxes returned on the property, the folder says, $80.25 (excluding state aid) would be spent on education.

Federal Jury Clears 5 In Wayne Liquor Case

A jury Wednesday night took only 65 minutes to free all five defendants in a Wayne County illegal liquor case.

The verdict of not guilty left the federal government loser again in its oft-unrewarded efforts to gain a moonshine conspiracy conviction in south Georgia.

Among those cleared by U.S. District Court jurors were brothers, Kenneth and Kellon Hicks of Bryceville, Fla.

Judge Frank M. Scarlet heard the case. Treasury agents testified they watched the Hicks brothers make illegal liquor all day and when they took them into custody there was much and still-soot all over their clothing.

The other defendants were Jesup barber and ex-deputy sheriff Merrill Odum, 32; C. W. Harvey, 39, unsuccessful candidate for Wayne Superior Court clerk in 1955, and Charlie Owens, Negro tenant farmer.

A defense witness, Jesse Madrey, testified Harvey sold him his farm and is now in the business of selling legal whisky.

Madrey said Harvey is a partner with him in a package store at Jesup on a commission basis.

The conspiracy charge against Kenneth Hicks was dropped at the conclusion of the trial, leaving only counts concerning the making of moonshine. The conspiracy charge was dropped when defense attorneys discovered that the defendant's name was omitted in the typed indictment count concerning the charge.

Nine other defendants, including two deputy sheriffs and a Jesup policeman still are under indictments in the case.

Sen. Thurmond To Participate In Russell Day

Constitution State News Service WINDER, Oct. 23—Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-SC) has accepted an invitation to participate Saturday in the celebration here honoring Sen. Russell.

Sen. Thurmond's office said the South Carolinian will go from his home town at Aiken to Winder, will ride in the celebration parade and make a brief speech in praise of Russell.

A mile-and-a-half-long parade of floats, costing from $400-$1,500, will honor Winder's "favorite son," Sen. Richard Russell, Saturday.

Friends of the senator have planned "Senator Russell Appreciation Day" to include the parade, a barbecue and the highlights of the celebration, speeches by colleague Sen. Herman Talmadge as well as Sen. Russell.

William England Resigns as Clerk Of Appeals Court After 40 Years

William G. England, an officer of the Georgia Court of Appeals for 40 years, Wednesday announced his resignation as clerk of the court.

The judges of the court named Morgan Thomas, presently deputy clerk, to fill England's position.

The change is effective Dec. 1.

England became an employee of the court in 1917 as a law assistant. He was appointed clerk in January 1933.

The new clerk lives in Marietta. He has been an employee of the Appeal Court for 23 years, with the exception of five years in service during World War II.

Thomas received his law degree from the University of Georgia and was admitted to the bar in 1934.

State Political Leaders Laud Brownell's Retiring

President astray on constitutional questions," Davis said.

Roy V. Harris of Augusta, new president of the Georgia States Rights Council, said Brownell's resignation means "he has led them into a hole in Little Rock and they are in a bad spot."

However, Harris said he did not agree that Rogers will be an improvement.

"They are trying to change faces to save their necks," Harris declared, "but they have just swapped the devil for the witch."

A similar view was expressed by State Democratic Chairman John Sammons Bell.

"Brownell has damaged this country to an extent far greater than have many of its declared enemies," Bell said. "His withdrawal from the government is therefore good riddance."

"I know nothing about his successor, but if he is Brownell-trained he probably will be just another apple coming from the same rotten barrel."

A more optimistic view was expressed by Charles J. Bloch, Macon attorney and a leading critic of the Eisenhower administration's civil rights and integration policies.

"I think it is a good omen," Bloch said. "From my knowledge of Mr. Rogers, he will be an improvement over Brownell. I am impressed with his ability."

Bloch said he knew little about Rogers' views but said the Senate, which must confirm the new attorney general, should "use its full powers of advice and consent to find them out."

"PERSONABLE FELLOW"

Sen. Talmadge said in Augusta that he knew little about Rogers but had sat next to him at a banquet in Washington earlier this year. He said he found the attorney general-designate a personable fellow.

"However, I understand he is close to Vice President Nixon and that certainly is not a good endorsement," Talmadge added.

"It is a pity he didn't resign earlier," commented Atty. Gen. Eugene Cook. "His resignation cannot undo the damage he has already done this country. We can hope his successor is not a Brownell prototype."

"WHITEWASH"

Rep. E. L. (Tic) Forrester of Leesburg described Rogers as an apt student of Brownell.

"While I hope I am mistaken, I'm afraid that Mr. Rogers will diligently pursue the philosophies of Brownell and will be busy in setting up the U.N. charter and the universal declaration of human rights as superior to the U.S. Constitution."

In Columbia, S.C., Gov. George Bell Timmerman termed Brownell's resignation "an attempt to whitewash what the President did in Little Rock." He said the attorney general was a "definite factor" in sending federal troops into Little Rock to enforce integration.

He said he was "not unhappy" at Brownell's departure but added: "This does not solve the problem because the troops remain in Little Rock."

peoples of the world a chance for a full and fruitful life."

Dulles followed up by saying that the meeting offered an opportunity "to tie together, not just two nations, but just the United States and the Commonwealth nations, but all free nations."

President Eisenhower will give further assurance that the interests of the 13 other Atlantic Pact nations are not being forgotten by conferring on Friday with Paul-Henri Spaak, secretary general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Macmillan indicated the casual atmosphere with which both sides seek to surround these important meetings.

"A good deal has happened," he observed, since his last meeting with Eisenhower at Bermuda last March. "And we all felt it was time for another meeting. There is no substitute for meetings," he added.

He looks forward, he said, to "a quiet talk among friends and partners." A State Department announcement called it "an informal exchange of views without agenda."

Brownell Quits Cabinet Post

Congress have been notoriously difficult, Rogers has apparently remained a great favorite at the Capitol. An interesting example is his businesslike working relationship with the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Sen. Eastland of Mississippi, an implacable opponent of the Justice department's civil rights policies.

PARTICULAR HELP

The good opinion Rogers enjoys in Congress may be of particular help to the administration in the next session. Every indication has been that Southern Democrats, embittered by the Little Rock, Ark., integration dispute, were planning sharp jabs at the administration and especially Brownell.

Rogers has actually had major responsibility in the racial problems of the last year. Brownell was in Europe during most of the Senate debate on civil rights legislation, and it was Rogers who laid down the firm policy of holding out for a stronger bill than the Senate version.

Brownell was the President's chief adviser during the events that culminated in the dispatch of federal troops to Little Rock. But Rogers had a most important hand in the legal planning.

In a brief press conference after the news broke today, Brownell emphasized that he had delayed his departure because of the Little Rock crisis. He said he had originally intended to leave a year ago, but put his resignation off to just about the time the Little Rock dispute began.

APPROPRIATE TIME

"Since the federal government's legal position in this case has now been clearly defined," Brownell wrote the President, "It seems an appropriate time for me to fulfill my desire to resume private law practice."

In his press conference the attorney general repeated that thought, with one difference. He said the government's position had now been clearly defined "in this case and future cases."

It was, incidentally, Brownell's first general press conference since April 28, 1955.

He was asked whether he had any thought of running for governor of New York next year. He reiterated a statement he made Aug. 30 that he would not accept the nomination, and he added that he had no plans of any kind to run for office.

Brownell noted in his letter to the President that he had been in office longer than any other attorney general in the last century except one. That was Homer Cummings, attorney general under President Roosevelt from 1933 to 1939.

Asked what aspect of his work pleased him the most, Brownell replied: "I feel a great deal of satisfaction that we have restored public confidence in federal law enforcement. You'll remember the situation was not good. . . ."

nominee and is credited with helping Nixon draft the famous "Checkers" speech of that campaign.

Eisenhower subsequently named Rogers deputy attorney general to help Brownell.

Earlier, Rogers had won prominence as chief counsel for the old Senate war investigating committee and later helped fasten the labels of deep freezers and five per center deals upon the Democratic regime of Harry S. Truman.

It is generally understood that Brownell handpicked Rogers for deputy attorney general when Eisenhower designated Brownell as top power in the Justice Department prior to the 1953 inauguration.

Rogers' blond hair, quick wit and equally quick smile are well known in official Washington, where he is on a half-fellow-well-met basis with many people. He has been kicking around the nation's capital for 10 years, primarily as counsel for congressional committees.

When World War II broke out, Rogers joined the Navy and served on the aircraft carrier Intrepid, taking part in the attacks on Japan and the occupation of Okinawa. His ship was twice hit by Japanese suicide planes but he escaped unscathed.

The new attorney general was educated in public schools in Norfolk and Canton, N.Y., and later attended Colgate and Cornell law school where he received his law degree in 1937. While still a student, he married Adele Langston of Wenonah, N.J., in 1936. They have one daughter and three sons, two of whom attend a private Quaker school in Washington, another a public school.

The Bakers' Survey Is Some Pumpkins

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (UP)—Officers of the American Bakers Assn. said pumpkin pie preference depends upon what part of the nation you hail from.

New England residents like it dark and spicy, ABA president E. E. Kelly Jr. said, while the Midwest prefers a mild, light-colored pie. Southern housewives add squash to pumpkin pie to give it "more body," he said.

an artificial moon into the skies next March as planned.

The launching was the third in a series of test firings leading to the actual attempt to launch next March a satellite crammed with scientific instruments.

The rocket fired today was not intended to reach an orbit and circle the earth like Russia's Sputnik rocket.

However, it looked much like the rocket that will be used to launch a satellite next March. It carried the same Vanguard engine in the first stage of the rocket. But the second and third stages were dummies, except for some test instruments.

It was the first test for the first stage rocket. The second stage, which carries the "brains" of the complex booster system, has not yet been tested. A prototype of the third stage was fired in one of the two previous tests in the Vanguard series.

Toll-TV Baseball Might Strike Out

By PAUL JONES

If pay-TV comes how much would you be willing to pay to see a baseball game—or a topflight movie?

This question apparently has puzzled the backers of toll-television. To say nothing of the owners of baseball clubs. And it might have caused you some concern, too, if you are one who enjoys watching free TV.

At any rate, The Pulse, Inc., one of the audience survey firms, set out to determine how much fans in Los Angeles and San Francisco would be willing to pay to watch a baseball game involving their home team.

The answers are rather startling. Ninety-eight per cent of the folks in Los Angeles said they'd be willing to pay 25 cents to watch the new Los Angeles Dodgers play. And 97 per cent of those polled in San Francisco said they'd chip in 25 cents to watch their new Giants at work.

As the price of watching a game advanced, the percentage of people willing to participate dropped greatly.

Only 8 per cent of the people in San Francisco said they'd pay as much as $1 a game. While only 54 per cent of the Los Angeles people would say as much as 50 cents.

The most startling revelation in the survey is the fact that only one per cent of the San Franciscans would be willing to pay to see every game.

THIS STUDY was not a blind one. The survey was conducted only in the homes of viewers of baseball on television.

In round numbers, the Pulse

CHANNEL CHUCKLE

"Here's a model that's really slender."

people say, this means 107,700 TV homes in San Francisco and 243,200 in Los Angeles would support pay-TV baseball.

"The crucial factor uncovered by the West Coast study on the potential of pay-TV baseball," said Sydney Roslow, the president of The Pulse, Inc., "is the number of times the TV viewer would pay, per week, to see baseball in the comfort of his home."

"The sharp dropoff indicates the consumer is aware of the comfort potential of pay-TV but is also perturbed by the cost of this luxury. If, and when, pay-TV baseball becomes a reality, this is a factor the entrepreneurs of the new medium will have to cope with."

It will be interesting to see some figures on how much people would be willing to pay for other forms of entertainment—football, boxing, movies and quiz shows, newscasts, etc.

The big question in my mind, though, is not how much—but how long will they pay for something they're now getting for nothing?

RICHARD WIDMARK, who used to be a professor in speech and drama at Chicago University, has honored several Atlanta TV and radio announcers for excellence in speech and showmanship.

Ray Moore of WSB-TV and Jerry Vandeventer of WSB-Radio, Frank Lokey of WLW-A, Dean Dickens, of WAGA-TV, Ed Sharpe of WYVE and Richard Narcellan of WYVE will be awarded citations given by Widmark. Howard Rutherford, manager of Loew's Grand, will make the presentations.

P.S.: Widmark's latest movie, "Time Limit," opens there Nov. 7.

A "LITTLE OLD LADY" writes: "I do get so tired, hearing you praise Perry Como. I think he is the slickest man I ever saw on TV. He is just a bore. The commercials on his program are far more entertaining than anything on Como's show. Give somebody else a word of praise now and then." Have any suggestions, anyone?

PHONE TO INTERVIEW—Rollo (Dick Wesson) attempts to convince Sandra Gilles, attractive reporter, that Sock Miller is not going to run against his father-in-law for mayor, in the comedy series, "The People's Choice," which will be featured on Channel 2 at 8 p.m.

Margaret To Resume TV Career

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Margaret Truman Daniel is going back to television—but she says she isn't going to let it dominate her life.

"From now on my TV career will come second. I will not let it interfere with my career as a wife and mother."

Her last appearance on TV was on the Steve Allen NBC show in May, 1956, shortly after her marriage to New York Times staff member Clifton Daniel Jr. A son was born to them last June.

She will return to the NBC network Nov. 14 as the star in a "Matinee Theater" play, "Iris."

Don't Picture Queen, Macmillan Tells TV

LONDON, Oct. 23 (AP)—One of Prime Minister Macmillan's last acts before flying to Washington conferences with President Eisenhower was to veto TV at the opening of Britain's Parliament by Queen Elizabeth II Nov. 5.

Autumn Walks N. Georgia's Hills As Tourists Throng the Highways

By CELESTINE SIBLEY
Dazed but happy citizens of Georgia mountain communities, overwhelmed by a record-breaking rush of autumn foliage tourists last Sunday, this week issued another invitation and a warning: "Come back. The peak is yet to come. But either make reservations somewhere for meals or bring your own."

The warning about food was necessary, hospitable mountain residents said, because eating places were not able to cope with the rush last weekend. The more famous old hotels and inns were booked solid, roadside hot dog stands and even run-of-the-mill eating places ran out and, as Mrs. J. D. Anthony of the Dahlonega-Lumpkin County Chamber of Commerce reported, "I saw a number of crying, hungry children."

"We have in Dahlonega five public eating places plus two drugstores," Mrs. Anthony said. "Last Sunday they went like mad all day. Drugstores closed at 5 p.m. and the others went as long as they had food left. Yet hundreds and hundreds were turned away."

TOURIST COMMITTEE
The Dahlonega Chamber of Commerce tourist committee, which dispenses information, folders and leaflets on the foliage tours from a stand in the town square, counted 25,000 northbound cars passing through town during the day. On the Ellijay town square an unofficial checker tabulated an average of 912 an hour. Col. W. C. Dornin, director of the State Department of Public Safety, said troopers in the mountain counties reported "a steady but orderly movement of traffic all day."

Col. Dornin said despite the thousands of cars on the mountain highways there were no serious traffic accidents.

He said each mountain patrol post will have a full complement of troopers next Sunday in anticipation of even heavier crowds. Meanwhile the U.S. Forest Service announced an addition to the mountain tours. The Blue Ridge Wildlife management area, normally locked to vehicle traffic, will be opened Saturday and Sunday afternoons for the benefit of those who wish to look at the autumnal scenery.

The gates at Cooper Gap and Lower Rock Creek will be open from noon to 6 p.m. on both days.

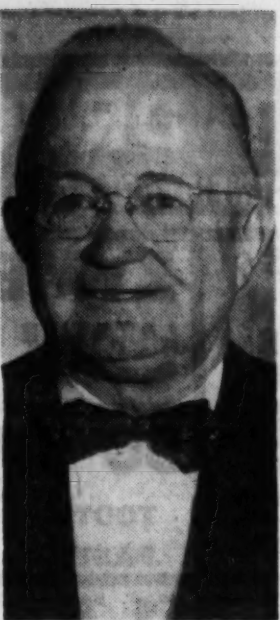

"TRAVELERS' LOOP"
Having these two gates opened makes a convenient "traveler's loop" beginning at Dahlonega, and thence out the Camp Wah-sega road to 3-Notch Gap and on to Cooper Gap. At Cooper Gap the management area along the Blue Ridge Divide to Hightower Gap. Here a right turn leads down the Rock Creek drainage and out onto State Highway 60 at Margaret, Ga.

The return to Dahlonega via Suches, Woodys Gap and Stonepile Gap is all on Highway 60. This trip would take about three or four hours for the average tourist.

U.S. Forest Ranger George Biskay, Dahlonega, announced the plans to open the gates for this special purpose, and added, "We would like to share the beauty of this drive with more people than the limited number of hunters and fishermen who normally use the Wildlife Management

Toney Contract Signed in 1955
DeKalb County real estate developer J. W. Toney signed a contract with the county on Dec. 12, 1955, for the county to refund the cost of labor and materials for a water line to one of Toney's subdivisions in Toney Valley.

The Constitution reported erroneously Wednesday that the contract, amounting to $3,297, was signed Jan. 11, 1957. The refund was given to Toney on Jan. 11, 1957. Toney is a DeKalb commissioner.

Baptist Association Brands Fair Here as 'a Disgrace'

By KAY McLEOD
Constitution Church Editor
The Atlanta Baptist Assn. Wednesday declared "Atlanta's Southeastern Fair for 1957 was a disgrace to the city" and started a move to clean out gambling games and sideshows at future fairs.

Acting on a resolution offered by Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist Church, the association appointed a committee to confer with the mayor, the police chief and the president of the Southeastern Fair to investigate conditions at the fair.

QUOTES EDITORIAL
Quoting from an editorial in the Oct. 24, 1957, issue of the Christian Index, Dr. Newton's resolution said, "It was one gambling game after another. Side shows which, if their advertising was correct, should have been closed by the vice squad. . . . It is time that decent people demand reform or closing."

Elfred S. Papy, president of the Fair, said, "I do not feel these charges are justified."

"The only thing I can say is that there is no gambling that I know of on the fair grounds. You do have certain games of skill such as shooting, but nothing that you generally consider gambling," he said.

"SURPRISED AT CHARGES"
"In regard to the sideshows," he added, "the Fair has always been willing to eliminate any show which people consider objectionable. I'm really surprised at the charges," said Papy.

Capital Blaze Doused

Prompt action by a workman limited fire damage on the roof of the Georgia Capitol Wednesday to "a few dollars."

The fire broke out shortly before 10 a.m. in a small portion of the roof north of the dome. Fire companies 1, 5 and 9 answered the call.

Before firemen arrived, steam-fitter R. R. McMahan of Loganville grabbed a fire extinguisher from the attic and doused the flames.

As a safety precaution, firemen wetted down the area.

The fire burned about an inch down into wood decking and a roof rafter. Acting Fire Chief C. W. Poole said the wood was rich and old and would have burned rapidly had it not been caught promptly.

Poole said the blaze probably was caused by an acetylene torch, though workmen said no welding

The Goal Is God's Glory

QUESTION: I have been teaching a Sunday school class for many years in our church. Some time ago I was asked to resign. Do you think I should take this or shall I demand some rights in the matter? — A. H.

ANSWER: The Bible says to Christians, "Have this mind in you which was also in Christ Jesus." Be sure that in this matter you maintain such an attitude, for it is not our own rights we are seeking, but rather the honor and glory of the name of Christ.

Is this action that of a single person or a decision of the church? That would make a great difference, for it would be unwise to stand against a decision of the church. If it is the action of some one person, then at least the church should know about it so that everything might always be done decently and in order.

Above all, you must do always whatever is most conducive to your own spiritual growth for you cannot be influential in the lives of others if you are a defeated Christian. Through prayer and study of the Scriptures, make sure of the will of God before you do anything lest you be a hindrance to the church.

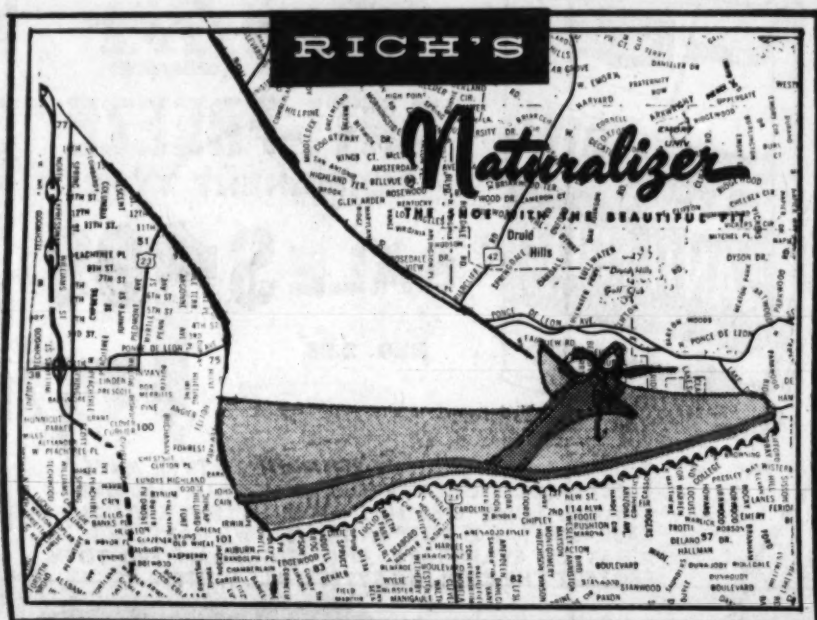

Sputnik Inquires: Who Owns Space?

MONTREAL, Oct. 23 (AP)—Sputnik will rear its spinning head at the 21-nation International Civil Aviation Council meeting here Nov. 18. It is raising the question of sovereignty over outer space. Officials say there must be some definition of how much space a nation may control.

And some predict this means that for space-prowling earthmen there may be a U.N.-policed international realm of the high air comparable with the free high seas.

Ga. Doctors At Session In Augusta

By FRANK WELLS
 AUGUSTA, Oct. 23—Nearly 200 Georgia family doctors put down their little black bags Wednesday and visited Augusta for a two-day conference complete with study and fun at the ninth annual session of the Georgia Academy of General Practice.

Wednesday night was the fun period, with a banquet and a humorous lecture by Dr. Russell B. Roth, of Erie, Pa., who used the title "An Oblique View of Medical Public Relations" to keep the doctors and their wives in stitches at the dinner.

All day Wednesday was turned

over to business and scientific meetings. The last scientific discussion Wednesday dealt with the family doctors' approach to tuberculosis. The question was discussed by a panel of Dr. Sam Patton, of Macon, moderator; Dr. William Hopkins, Atlanta chest surgeon; Dr. R. H. Kampmeier, of Vanderbilt University School of Medicine, and Dr. R. F. Carpe, superintendent and chief surgeon at Battery State Hospital.

Dr. Carpe told the doctors that the big problem of tuberculosis treatment today is that the general public thinks the disease is no longer significant since the advent of the so-called "wonder drugs."

"This is a problem of complacency," Dr. Carpe said, "although the death rate has dropped to the low figure of eight per 100,000, the rate of incidence of the disease is just as high now as it ever has been."

Dr. Hopkins said that the question of surgery in cases of the disease had reached a stable point. He said that at one time, there was a "flurry" of chest surgery of tubercular patients.

The new drugs and early diagnosis have eliminated the reasons for some of the surgery, and Dr. Hopkins predicted that as more and more new drugs are discovered, or developed, that there will be a corresponding drop in surgical cases.

"However, resection or removal of a lung is still sometimes the only hope for cure," Dr. Hopkins said.

Earlier Wednesday, Dr. Kampmeier had spoken to the group about his experiences with collagen diseases, which are diseases of connective tissue and sometimes present symptoms often confused with other illnesses.

Dr. David Bosworth, New York orthopedic surgeon, lectured and showed slides to the group outlining methods of fracture reduction and difficulties he had encountered in his practice. He told the family doctors that the use of simple measures in setting broken bones often resulted in better healing.

Dr. Arthur M. Master, New York cardiologist, also spoke to the group.

He outlined his two-step exercise test. This is designed to give information on the heart from electrocardiogram following exercise.

Wednesday morning, Dr. William Waddell, chairman of the department of pediatrics at the University of Virginia, told the physicians, "Doctors can immunize against a growing list of diseases, but only parents can immunize against accidents."

Dr. Waddell quoted figures to show that accidents are the number one killer of children.

The Georgia doctors Wednesday morning nominated a slate of officers for the coming year. They will be installed Thursday morning.

They are: Doctors Fred H. Simonson, Chickamauga, president; Sage Harper, Douglas, president-elect; Ben K. Looper, Canton, vice president; W. M. Moncrief, Atlanta, secretary-treasurer; T. A. Sappington, Thomaston, delegate, and C. M. Templeton, Augusta, alternate delegate.

New directors nominated were: Doctors Charles T. Brown, Guyton, first district; George R. Dillinger, Thomasville, second district; E. C. McMillan, Macon, sixth district, and H. B. Cason, Warrenton, tenth district.

Bonn A-Ship Test

WESBADEN, Germany, Oct. 23—Prof. E. Bagge of Kiel University told atomic scientists here that a West German test model of an atom-powered ship engine will be ready in early 1959.

State Grants Fired Employee Time to Answer New Charges

The State Personnel Board granted a former state employee who claims she was fired for "political" reasons additional time to answer new charges by the state which her attorney denounced as a "smear."

The board delayed for about 30 days a hearing on the appeal of Mrs. Fannie Connolly to be reinstated to her $275 a month job in the Savannah sales tax office.

Mrs. Connolly was removed as an examiner on Aug. 31 by Revenue Commissioner Williams. He said the dismissal was for reasons of economy.

At Wednesday's board meeting, Asst. Atty. Gen. A. J. Hartley broadened the charges against Mrs. Connolly to include "gross misconduct" and "negligence and inefficiency."

The new charges drew an angry reaction from Mrs. Connolly's attorney, Aaron Kravitch of Savannah. Kravitch said he had no advance knowledge of the "eleventh hour" charges and demanded a postponement of the hearing to prepare answers to them.

The board granted the delay. But not before the peppery Savannah lawyer had soundly denounced the new charges as "filmy," "poppycock," "untrue" and a "smear" on Mrs. Connolly's reputation.

"It just isn't fair," he said. "It's un-American."

The six new causes which Hartley listed for Mrs. Connolly's dismissal alleged:

1. That she had never been appointed by the proper authority to the position of sales tax examiner.

2. That not having been so appointed, she was subject to release at the revenue commissioner's discretion.

3. That she had shown "negligence and inefficiency" by not performing the duties of an examiner but instead those of an intermediate typist.

4. That she had shown "gross misconduct" by collecting expenses for meals while supposed to be on duty outside her home base which, according to Hartley, she did not perform.

5. That she did not possess the minimum qualifications for her position.

6. That she had shown "gross misconduct" by "misrepresenting" to the Revenue Department her qualifications for employment.

Kravitch said the allegation about the expenses drawn for meals amounted to a charge of "embezzling funds of the state of Georgia."

He said if Williams, who did not attend the meeting, would waive his immunity as commissioner of revenue that Mrs. Connolly would sue him for damages. Board member Stanley Brooks of McRae said he wanted to see that Mrs. Connolly received fair treatment.

"If some short-shirted politician down there got her fired, I want to see her restored," he said. "But if she is guilty of the charges, then I want her to stay where she is now."

Miss Marion Faircloth, a Savannah businesswoman who is active in politics, appeared with Kravitch and Mrs. Connolly attempted to speak in the former employee's behalf. When Hartley objected—and Kravitch agreed with him—Miss Faircloth said she would wait until the later hearing.

The board directed its hearing

You Can Go Shopping for Ideas

By YOLANDE GWIN

When women go shopping for clothes, they make the grand tour, give everything the eye, carefully deciding what is best for their particular needs.

This same method could well apply when they decide to build a home, plan a garden, or get new appliances or even dream up a remodeling job.

The answer to any house-building problem from the layman's viewpoint can be found on Spring street where the Architects and Engineers Institute has opened a vast vista of supplies, ideas, plans and information available to the public. Open house at the institute will continue through this week.

DUAL PURPOSE

From the professional standpoint, the place serves a dual purpose. A non-profit organization sponsored by the Georgia chapter of the American Institute of Architects and the Georgia Engineering Society, the institute was granted a charter in April, 1956.

Its first purpose is to bring these organizations together so that they will be better able to assist one another in collaborative study and research. Secondly, it is designed to keep its members, as well as the public, informed on new ideas, new materials and new methods relating to the construction industry.

An ultimate goal of the institute is to use surplus funds from the operation of the building to establish scholarships and promote research projects.

SOMETHING FOR ALL

"There is something for everybody here," said Mrs. Elizabeth Langmuir, the executive secretary. "Many allied industries are represented that will furnish inspiration to a homebuilder."

"It is a timesaver too. Future homeowners can come here and see for themselves many ideas that they would have to merely imagine from blueprints. It is an aid to a builder, too, for it saves many a change of mind and plans."

In the display areas seeing is believing.

For instance, there are completed patios—flowers and all—for any type of home. There is a variety of concrete masonry displayed both from a decorative standpoint as well as for foundation building.

PATIO LAMPPOST

One interesting item is a patio lamp post, but it sheds no light. It's for music in the garden, the sounds coming from beneath the "lantern."

Institute planners have thought along artistic lines too, for in one area many pictures, water colors as well as oils, and copper enamel panels are hung against a variety of backgrounds. This will give a potential home builder an idea of a choice of wall covering and materials.

Corners furnished in modern decor give a look newer than the next satellite. Each is offset by lighting fixtures. There are even hooked rugs displayed against a background of suitable flooring.

The institute building—at the corner of Spring and Harris streets—inspires a visitor on a "just suppose" type of tour.

Just suppose you want to see different roof materials. Or different types of floor coverings. Or such varieties of masonry as solid, veneered, brick, stone, concrete or stucco. It's all there to see.

Or suppose you want to give your kitchen a face lifting. Or have new fixtures put on doors and windows. The list is endless, just as are ideas of clients who want to build a home and go to the architects or engineers who will lend a hand.

Its use primarily, of course, will be a place where members can take their clients for a look-see of materials being suggested or specified in the building of a home, store or factory.

Working Mother Can Be Better for Child

By ANNA PETERSEN

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

HARRIMAN, N.Y., Oct. 23—Many working women are better mothers because they work, the National Manpower Council was told here by a woman professor. She presented a paper on "Work in the Lives of Married Women."

The educator is Dr. Frances L. Feldman, associate professor in the School of Social Work at the University of Southern California. She declared that in addition to their roles of wives and mothers, some women need to enter other fields of activity for complete satisfaction.

Many women derive such satisfaction from social contacts or civic activities or in paid work and return to their families stimulated and eager to rejoin them, Dr. Feldman contended. She asserted that "such mothers may have as much to give the child as though they did not work."

Dr. Feldman's views were discussed by 90 leaders in a variety of fields attending sessions this week at Columbia University's Arden House.

The social scientist emphasized that the employment of mothers is not universally beneficial from the viewpoint of children.

"There is no doubt," she explained, "that many families pay a penalty if the wife works. Such children not only need the mother at home when the child is, but they need also the security of knowing she is there even when the child is not."

The result for the children will be on the positive side, Dr.

Feldman continued, only if the mother "derives some satisfaction out of working and if her relationships with the children have consistency, affection, warmth and understanding."

In such cases, she said, the mother's motives for working must be realistic and not neurotic.

20-Button Glove For Formal Wear

With a really formal evening gown, the 20-button-length glove is de rigueur, even if the gown is short. The little white kid shortie glove belongs with informal evening dresses or with the picturesque full-skirted dresses of the young debutantes.

First choice for the 20-button long glove, or opera length, as it is very appropriately called, is white kid—either glace or suede.

Or you might choose a pale pastel to match your dress or black if your gown is black.

Degenerate Art Burns

The Southeastern Art Exhibit has come and gone but from where I sit it looks like it created as much commotion as Sputnik. And isn't that a lovely thing? I mean it reassures and comforts me to find that familiar, close, non-explosive things like paint on canvas can still get people excited and, in some cases, mad.

There was a letter to the editor in our paper Tuesday from a lady named Claire P. Carpenter, who had to say about "the current nonsense now being shown to us today as good art." She was irritated to the point where she suggested that only vigorous protests and refusal to buy such works would discourage these painters.

Miss Carpenter's letter interested me and I waited with bated breath for reaction, thinking, of course, that an artist who specializes in drawing thunder and lightning would come crackling and roaring to his own defense. But the first person I heard from was a young man named Charles who commented on Miss Carpenter's letter as follows:

"Just thought I'd let you know how I've been coming along with my paintings. As you recall, Miss Carpenter was all for art that is 'truly good, truly beautiful' and tough as nails on degenerate art that is prominent today."

"Well, at our house we've had a tough time trying to sort out what is degenerate and what isn't. The first thing I did, of course, was to toss out the three Picasso paintings I have. I really don't know if they were degenerate or not, but I figured Miss Carpenter wouldn't like them, so out they went."

"The Rembrandt, too?" asked my wife, as I tossed a particularly nice painting on the fire. (It was a bit nippy out that night.) "That woman has a gleam in her eye," I replied. "Might be degenerate. Can't take a chance."

"Not the Paul Klee," my wife said. "It's not so true and beautiful, truly it isn't," I said, and the abstract bit the dust."

"Grandma Moses never harmed anyone," the little woman pleaded. "She's as bad as Norman Rockwell," I said, staunchly thinking of what Miss Carpenter would do if she ever saw those two degenerates, Rockwell and Moses, in our living room."

"To make a long story short, the Braque, the Monet and the Manet, along with that ribald Rubens we have, were thrown out. Right now though, we're stuck, and we wish Miss Carpenter would offer some help. I have a Modigliani (it's a young woman, not too warmly dressed) and we also have a picture swiped from a bar that also features a young woman."

"And we don't know which is degenerate. Could Miss Carpenter let us know? And how about printing a list of paintings that she thinks are degenerate?"

"Anyhow, we're all for cleaning up art. I'm for it 100 per cent. If Miss Carpenter decides to form a 'Committee to Save Our Young People from Viewing Degenerate Art,' count me in as a charter member."

"You may not know that I served with distinction on a 'Committee to Prevent Our Children from Reading Any Literature That Might Be Disturbing.' That should be good enough to get me on her committee. And we have a large fireplace at our home for bonfires."

The bumptious young man left the letter on my desk and walked off before I could get his proper name and address. But I don't suppose it really matters. I have a feeling both Miss Carpenter and I have been unmercifully kidded. And I hope she is amused, too.

Junior Club Plans Clinic

The Junior Woman's Club will hold a leadership clinic Saturday, Oct. 26, at 10 a.m. in the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Mrs. Paul C. Harrison will conduct the public speaking session. Mrs. Willis A. Peck will lead the parliamentary procedure discussion. A question and answer period and luncheon will be included.

Mrs. R. L. Smith, chairman of the educational department, will preside over the affair.

Miss Carroll, Mr. Peavy Are Married

CLARKESVILLE, Oct. 23—Miss Sue Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carroll, was married to Marvin Peavy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Peavy of Cuthbert, at an evening ceremony solemnized at the Clarkesville Methodist Church. The Rev. Howell Hearn was the officiant.

Miss Jean Fry of Clarkesville was the bride's maid of honor, and her bridesmaids were Misses Jeannette Crist and Nancy Dixon of Clarkesville, and the bridegroom's sisters, Misses Wynell and Dorothy Peavy of Cuthbert.

Mr. Peavy chose his father as his best man. His groomsmen included Buddy Moulton of Tallulah Falls, David Anderson of Helen, Jack Hobbs and Charles Sanderlin of Cuthbert.

Mr. Carroll gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of white satin and Alencon lace with a fingertip veil of illusion and lace embroidered in seed pearls, belonging to Mrs. Pete Hodkinson III. She carried a satin-covered Bible adorned with a cluster of white orchids.

A reception was held in the church parlors. Mrs. Buddy Moulton kept the bride's book.

After a Florida wedding trip, the couple will live in Clarkesville and attend Piedmont College at Demorest where Mr. Peavy is a senior.

Annie Lou Hardy Former Atlantan Pens Book on Treasure

Americans who have a yen for searching for treasures on the ocean floor (and they are legion) will doubtless take to the waves in earnest after today, for the date marks the debut of a new book on the subject from the press of Doubleday and Co. Entitled "Treasure Under the Sea," it is a fascinating account of history's most famous sea treasures which were either lost by accident or dumped on purpose.

The book is of unusual interest to Atlanta because its author is a former Atlantan, Nora Stirling, who was born and grew to young ladyhood here. The daughter of Mrs. A. W. Stirling and the late Dr. Stirling, Miss Stirling and her mother now make their home in New York where the former is well known as an actress and script writer in radio and television circles.

"Treasure Under the Sea" is something of a departure from anything in my previous experience," writes Miss Stirling, "except for an article in the New York Times Magazine which was in a way the genesis of the book."

The foreword explains that the late Waldemar Kaempffert, science editor of The Times, suggested that she write it and was of invaluable aid with the vast amount of research it entailed.

Of even more interest to Atlantans is Miss Stirling's forthcoming visit here. She is expected in the early winter, and plans to divide her time between Mr. and Mrs. William Huger on Valley road, and Mrs. Wayne Martin on Ardmore circle.

VISITORS ARRIVING tomorrow to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Meadow at their Ivy road home are their good friends, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Ball of Thomasville, their son, David Meadow, a Vanderbilt senior, and Miss Gay Barksdale, also a Vanderbilt student.

The foursome will be guests of the Meadows at the Halloween ball at the Driving Club on Saturday at which their hosts' daughter, Suzanne, will be presented with the other Debutante Club members.

MISS BARBARA PETTYS is off tomorrow for Harrisburg, Pa., to visit her former roommate at Stephens, Miss Andy Hickok, for the Pennsylvania National Horse Show. Miss Hickok will ride her mount, Hill Hawk, in the show.

Miss Pettys, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Pettys, and her hostess will also attend the gala military ball to be held Saturday evening honoring the Olympic jumping teams from all over the U.S., who will participate in the show. The Atlantan will fly home on Sunday.

SAM HOUSTON JR. was elected commodore of the Atlanta Yacht Club at the annual meeting held at the clubhouse, with James Shepherd named vice commodore, and Sam McConnell, rear commodore. Other officers are L. D. V. Benton, secretary, and William Methvin, treasurer.

A handsome silver tray was presented to Van Leach, the retiring commodore, at the dinner which followed the meeting. Future plans of the club include the keeping open of the clubhouse at Lake Allatoona during the winter, and the Christmas dinner-dance to be held at the Capital City Club on Dec. 13.

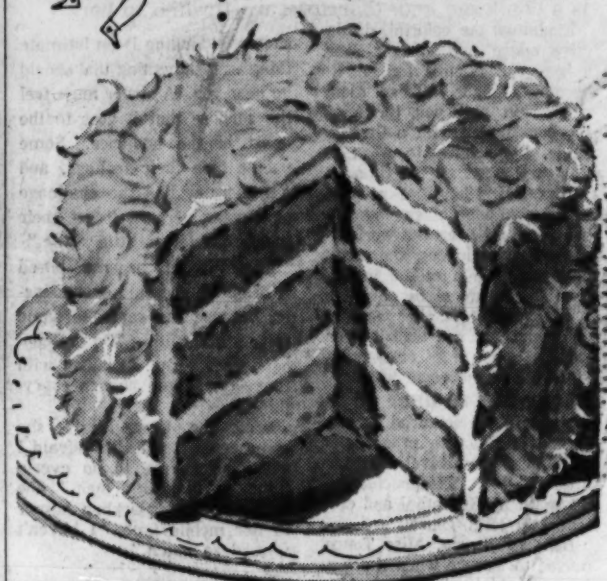

MR. AND MRS. I. HARDEMAN JONES of Decatur, and their sons, Michael and Gerald, motored to Macon yesterday to attend the reception at the Idle Hour Country Club given in honor of their uncle, Bruce Carr Jones. The occasion attracted relatives from all over the South, invited by Mrs. Harry H. Horton of Miami, the former Leila Jones, in celebration of her father's 80th birthday. Guests also included many colleagues of the legal profession, in which Mr. Jones is still active.

KEEP WELL: Annual Cancer Check Is Advised for Women

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN
Cancer of the uterus develops in 45,000 women annually, and 16,000 are expected to die. Many of these deaths are needless because we know how to diagnose the condition early and it can be treated via surgery or radiation.

opening (cervix) of the organ. There is no pain; bleeding may be the only symptom. It is for this reason that women never should neglect even a slight spotting between periods or after the menopause.
In the past, cancer in this area was detected only through a pelvic examination. The cytology method is preferred today because it is more accurate and easier to do—but of greater importance is the fact that the malignancy can be recognized long before the lesion can be seen or felt.

Normally the old cells from the surface of the body organs are cast off continuously. Cancer cells lining the inside of the uterus and cervix, as well as normal cells, are shed into the vaginal secretions. A smear of this fluid will disclose malignant cells if they are present.

Laboratory technicians need special training to perfect the cytology technique. The secretions are placed on a slide and stained with a special dye that makes cancer cells stand out more clearly under a microscope. A new method is the automatic optical electronic machine, the cytoanalyzer, which may speed up detection of cancer cells.

Many physicians now take vaginal smears routinely on all women patients as part of their annual examination. The secretions are sent to the laboratory for cytology study. This type of test also lends itself to mass cancer detection. An extensive survey of this nature, done on 108,000 Tennessee women over 20 years of age, uncovered 4.7 cases per 1,000 women examined.

The peak incidence occurred among women 50-55 in whom seven out of every 1,000 were found to have pelvic cancer; five out of these seven never suspected the disease. The screening process was conducted over a period of several years and two new cases appeared in every 1,000 women every year. This means that an annual checkup may be life saving.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions relating to health and hygiene in his column, and by mail when self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Letters should be addressed to Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen, in care of The Atlanta Constitution, Atlanta 2, Georgia.

Navy To Maneuver in Arabian Sea

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Navy said today that some U.S. warships will take part in a combined sea and air exercises late next month in the Arabian Sea. The training operations, the Navy said, will be sponsored by Pakistan and include ships and possibly aircraft from Great Britain, Iran and Turkey. The exercises have been given the name "Crescent" and will be held Nov. 25-Dec. 10 in the northern part of the Arabian Sea. Territories of Pakistan and Iran form the northern end of the Arabian Sea.

The Navy said that it is too early to say which U.S. ships will take part or to indicate the scope of the training operation.

Tunnel To Be Relined Near Newfound Gap

GATLINBURG, Tenn., Oct. 23 (AP)—Troitono & Brown Construction Co., Asheville, N.C., has been awarded a contract to reline the upper tunnel on U.S. Highway 441 near Newfound Gap. The Asheville firm, which won the contract on a low bid of $121,525, will replace the present wood lining of the tunnel with reinforced concrete.

A Rhyme a Day

"One mark of advance in civilization is the improved attitude of big-business which, at one time, showed small consideration or kindness to employees or the competition."—Business article quote.

It is well known by everyone . . . that any good that can be done . . . at any time, in any way . . . serves best if it is done today . . . you know it's true and so do I . . . and yet we let the days go by . . . forgetting in our years so brief . . . "procrastination is the thief . . . of time" who works while we're asleep and breaks appointments we should keep.

It's necessary to remind . . . ourselves, "the art of being kind" . . . should not be lost in all the rush . . . (which may be sentimental slush) . . . and yet it brings good dividends . . . from enemies as well as friends . . . so we should find a way somehow . . . to make a small investment now.

It is an art that should be saved . . . and, maybe, there should be engraved . . . upon the tomb of General Grant . . . "Once he could, but now he can't."

Father Who Sold 3 Children Faces Manila Deportation

MANILA, Oct. 3 (AP)—A domestic court judge says she will recommend deportation of a Chinese who peddled three of his 10 children and offered for sale two more children, a housemaid and his mother-in-law.

Yee Sun Chia, 26, the children's mother, revealed the sales during a hearing before Judge Natividad A. Lopez on the appeal of a wealthy Chinese couple to adopt one of the children.

She said her husband, Guan Chieng, 50, sold a 9-year-old daughter for $1,000 to a middleman who peddled her to Adolfo Hao and Corsica Tan. Guan also sold a boy when he was only 10 days old, she said, and another, a 3-month-old baby, for only $50. Yee charged her husband tried to sell their eldest child for $5,000, another daughter for $1,000 and their housemaid for $50. She said he expected to get another $1,000 for her mother, Lim Hiong.

These sales fell through, she said, because her husband was jailed on a misdemeanor charge. Yee said she did not report the sales to authorities because her husband threatened to beat her.

Has Scholarship Suffered at Central High?

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 23 (AP)—Has tension over integration and the presence of armed troops affected the scholarship of students attending Central High School?

School Supt. Virgil Blossom and the student newspaper feel those whose grades suffered most were the students who stayed away from the strife-torn campus.

Blossom said, "The grades of those who attended classes were not affected. The grades of those who have missed classes have been affected. And that's all we're going to say about it."

The Tiger, the student newspaper at Central, had this to say in an editorial: " . . . The fast-moving and sometimes violent events outside of school during the first six weeks have left their mark on many Central students; likewise, their scholastic records have not gone untouched. The scholastic standing of some was damaged by absence, either through fear or protest. The standing of others has been permanently shattered. These fortunately are in a small minority.

"As for the rest of us, the first six weeks meant either a small dislocation in our study habits or none at all. . . ."

It's a FACT:

There's a greater use of aluminum in the advanced engineering and design of the

CINNAMON BISCUITS
Place Gladiola Biscuits in baking pan. Prick top of each with fork; brush with melted butter. Sprinkle with a mixture of 1/4 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon (about 1 teaspoon to each biscuit). Bake at 450° (hot oven) about 12 minutes. Serve hot.

JELLY NUT BISCUITS
Roll Gladiola Biscuits about 1/4" thick (about 3" in diameter). Brush top of each biscuit with melted butter. Spread peanut butter generously on top of half the biscuits and then cover with jelly. Place other half of biscuit on top to make a "sandwich". Place on very lightly greased baking sheet, bake 12 to 15 minutes in 425° (hot) oven. Serve hot. Makes 5 sandwiches.

Abe Lyman Dies;

Ex-Bandleader,

Composer, 59

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Oct. 23 (AP)—Former bandleader Abe Lyman died at his home today of cancer. He was 59.

Lyman, a native of Chicago, started his professional career in 1916 as a drummer. He came to Los Angeles in 1918 and three years later, with the late Gus Arnheim at the piano, opened the Ambassador Hotel's Coconut Grove.

His band later toured the United States and Europe, appeared on radio shows and in movies. Lyman composed many songs, including "Mary Lou," "I Cried for You" and "After I Say I'm Sorry." His biggest popularity came in the late 1920s and early 30s.

Lyman retired in 1949 and devoted himself to the family restaurant business.

He leaves his wife Rose; two sisters, Mrs. Dorothy Marcus and Mrs. Sarah Kaplan; and a brother, William Simon, all of Los Angeles.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf from an old book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and faint horizontal lines, possibly from the scanning process or the paper's original grain. The page is framed by dark borders on the left and right sides, which appear to be the edges of the book's binding or the scanner's frame. There is no text or other markings on the page.

Thick suds' last stand...

- Lathering has its place—but not in your Automatic Washer. all's "Controlled Suds" clean cleaner, rinse freer, keep the serviceman at someone else's door

The little shaver above was born just about the time thick suds went out of style for automatic washers.

That's the day chemistry created all's "controlled suds." And that's the day owners of automatics began discovering how clean their machines were meant to wash.

If you wonder why makers of automatic washers and servicemen prescribe all, it's because thick, billowy suds slow the washing action, add strain to the motor, even clog costly washer parts.

They're even worse when it comes to rinsing. Try chasing suds down your kitchen sink—and you'll see what your automatic is up against during the rinse cycle. That's why all makes no useless suds. all concentrates on helping your machine wash and rinse the way it was designed to.

Try this "controlled suds" way of washing soon. Unless new Super-Rinse all, with its amazing whitening discovery, does a better washing job in your automatic than any detergent you've tried before, Lever Brothers will refund the full purchase price.

And next time you see the serviceman knocking at your suds-loving neighbor's door—thank your stars for all and famous "controlled suds."

THE MAKERS OF AUTOMATICS PRESCRIBE all... (shouldn't you be using it?)

Football Carnival

COLUMBIA, S.C., Oct. 23—Ferris wheels were whirling, carnival barkers were barking, Frank Howard was using the two-spittoon system and sophisticated Warren Giese was acting unsophisticated. Which could only mean that the State Fair is under way, and Clemson and South Carolina are ready to add the 55th chapter to one of football's most colorful and intense rivalries.

They call it Big Thursday, and the other 364 days aren't nearly as important as this one to loyalists in the Palmetto state.

Regardless of records, the game is always a sellout. In fact, the 42,000 tickets are grabbed off the counter at least two months before squads assemble for practice.

Howard, a city slicker who has become a self-styled country boy with years of practice, was strangely silent on the eve of the battle. He usually will talk willingly and at length on any topic, but he wasn't saying much about the upcoming battle royal. He did say that he wasn't paying "no attention to all those reports that Giese has several hurt people. I think they put the same story in the paper every year."

—Coach Howard Believes What He Sees

Though the teams appear evenly matched now, odds have fluctuated during the week, and the Gamecocks are going postward a three-point favorite.

Howard, a city slicker who has become a self-styled country boy with years of practice, was strangely silent on the eve of the battle. He usually will talk willingly and at length on any topic, but he wasn't saying much about the upcoming battle royal. He did say that he wasn't paying "no attention to all those reports that Giese has several hurt people. I think they put the same story in the paper every year."

Howard has decided to start Bill Barbary, senior quarterback, instead of sophomore Harvey White, who has been operating the T throttle. However, White will see ample service.

Extra spittoons had been anchored in Howard's room, for the tobacco-chewing country squire does more spitting than Lew Burdette and Ted Williams combined. He had an extra box of his special brand on hand, in case things are close Thursday.

Giese had an eye on the weather, for the weatherman had advised rain. And a wet field, in Giese's opinion, would provide an advantage for the hefty Tiger line.

The youthful and successful South Carolina mentor was gunning for his first victory in his second Big Thursday game. A year ago the Gamecocks were nosed 7-0, in a hard-knocking affair. They reached the Clemson goal, but a fumble canceled the scoring opportunity.

—The Palmetto Staters Have A Peach Flavor

Clemson cashed a TD and took no chances. Tiger quarterbacks did not throw a pass. Howard later explained that he knew Clemson couldn't pass, so there was no need to try. An oddity of last year's game was Howard's premonition. He told the Tigers to kick off if they won the toss. South Carolina, prophet Howard accurately forecast, will fumble and the Tigers will recover. And that's what happened.

Clemson will be aiming for its third straight triumph in the Big Thursday fracas, which would constitute a post-war record for Howard.

Though Frank has produced some great Clemson teams, Big Thursday has, in general, been a black letter day on his calendar. Rex Enright, now the Gamecock athletic director, held an 8-4-1 advantage over Howard.

Giese has announced sophomore Stan Spears as a quarterback replacement for the ailing Bunch. Two Georgia boys, W. L. Strickland of Thomaston and Sam Vickers of Macon, will be standing in the wings available for reserve duty. Dwight Keith, son of former Tech coach, Dwight, will see considerable service at center for the Gamecocks. Buddy Mayfield of Atlanta figured prominently at end, but he's sidelined with an injured hand.

There's an Atlanta flavor to the Clemson cast, for tackle Harold Olsen, guard Jim Payne and fullback Mike Dukes all hail from our area. George Ury, former Waycross star, and Charlie Horne, onetime Tech griddler, will man halfback slots for Howard's Tigers.

South Carolina, winner over Texas, Wofford and Furman and loser to Duke, 26-14, has the better record. Clemson has lost to North Carolina and N.C. State and whipped Presbyterian and Virginia.

If the football Gamecocks have as much trouble with Clemson as the administration did in arranging press accommodations, the game will end in a rout. They won't, of course, but I expect Clemson to win by a narrow margin. Say about 20-13.

FOOTBALL IN BRIEF

S. Carolina Frosh Belt Clemson, 15-7

From Press Dispatches

South Carolina's Baby Gamecocks scored 15 points in the first half and hung on for a 15-7 freshman football victory over the Clemson yearlings at Columbia before a disappointing crowd of 10,000 Wednesday night.

Harvey Shifflett returned a punt 21 yards to the Clemson 31-yard line to set up the first touchdown, which was scored by Bob Farmer of Elberton, Ga. after a drive sparked by the running of Bob Saunders.

South Carolina got a safety early in the second quarter and scored again before intermission as Saunders hauled a punt back 15 yards.

A last quarter Clemson TD was set up in late third quarter when guard Herbert Hester intercepted a pass and returned it 16 yards to the SC 22. Clemson moved deep into Carolina territory 3 times after that before scoring. Tyson Leonard of Swainsboro, Ga., ran nine yards to the two, and Don Hellig carried it over from there.

AROUND SEC—Johnny Vaughn warned his Ole Miss club that Arkansas is "faster than any team we've met," as the Rebels worked hard for the Razorbacks. He also warned of the passing of George Walker and Don Christian, who have completed 26-of-46. . . . Most SEC nominations for linemen of the week came from the Georgia Tech-Auburn game. Those listed were Auburn ends Jimmy Phillips and Jerry Wilson, Tiger center Jack Burkett, and Tech center Don Stephenson. . . . Winner of the linemen awards were sophomore guards Fred Brandel (Purdue) and Rodney Breelove (Maryland), for their play in upsets over Michigan State and North Carolina.

SOUTH—Arkansas guard Billy Gilbow and end Bob Childress were back in uniform after bouts with flu, but second line tailback Lamar Drummonds and third string guard Gerald Gardner were bedridden. . . . About Army, Ben Martin told this Virginia Cavalier: "Eleven men will converge on the ball carrier with all possible speed." . . . Ends Johnny Moody and John Herndon were injured in practice, and may not make Virginia Tech's trip to Florida State.

EAST—While Coach Eddie Erdelatz cringed, Navy athletic director Slade D. Cutter told newsmen: "Army is THE team to beat on the Navy schedule. I don't mean we wouldn't like to beat Notre Dame and Duke and everybody else we play; we would. . . . The Army game so overpowers the others that losing to some of the other teams doesn't make a lot of difference to me personally, just so we make a good showing."

Braves' Skipper Edges 'Hutch'

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Fred Haney, who led the Milwaukee Braves to their first pennant and world championship, today was named National League "Manager of the Year" for 1957 in the annual Associated Press poll.

Haney won a close vote over Fred Hutchinson, pilot of the second-place St. Louis Cardinals. The Cardinals were in a challenging position until the final week of the season.

Haney received 90 votes and Hutchinson 84 of the 180 that were cast by members of the Baseball Writers' Assn. of America. Mayo Smith of the Philadelphia Phillies was named on five ballots and Bill Rigney of the New York Giants on one.

Cincinnati's Birdie Tebbetts, the NL manager of the year in 1956, did not receive a single vote.

The success story Haney wrote in Milwaukee the past season reads like something that more

Alabama Gives Whitworth Boot

From Press Dispatches

University of Alabama Athletic Council Wednesday night announced at Tuscaloosa it would not recommend that football coach J. B. Whitworth be given a new contract.

Whitworth's contract will expire Dec. 1. He had said previously that he did not intend to ask for a renewal.

The council denied, however, a published report that it had asked Whitworth to issue a statement of resignation effective Dec. 1.

The council commended Whitworth for his work the past three years, but stressed that it would not recommend that his contract be renewed.

Alabama, long one of the powers in Southern football, has won only two of the 24 games played since Whitworth became coach. Two others have been ties.

Several prospective replacements for Whitworth have been mentioned. Among the most prominent are Wade Walker of Mississippi State and Paul Bryant of Texas A&M.

Wednesday afternoon, the Birmingham News had printed a front-page editorial that "there will be a new football coach at Alabama after Dec. 1."

The council said the statement has the approval of interim presi-

Big Thursday Kickoff at 2

COLUMBIA, S.C., Oct. 23—As far as the sovereign state of South Carolina is concerned, Sputnik may herewith go take a flying leap over the moon. For tomorrow is Big Thursday, and there are better uses for binoculars, meetings of the strategic high command and propaganda broadcasts.

It's the afternoon of the State Fair game and a record-breaking crowd of 44,500 spectators, including standees and a thousand who'll be seated behind the Clemson bench. It's an afternoon of hand-shaking politicians and styles from Paris.

It's the afternoon of the 55th Clemson-South Carolina football meeting, and in the Palmetto State, nothing is more important than this battle of Thursday titans.

Kickoff is at 2 p.m. (EST), and the well-drilled Gamecocks of Warren Giese go to the post as three-point favorites to snap a two-game Clemson winning streak in

The Gamecocks concentrated so hard on this game that they lost two of their most prized starters during a week of heavy scrimmages. Halfback King Dixon, the will-o'-wisp from Laurens, collided with quarterback Bobby Bunch during a knocking session, and the result was a shoulder separation for Bunch and a banged-up leg for Dixon. Bunch is out for the season, but King may see limited action on Thursday.

Thus the burden of the South Carolina effort falls on the strong shoulders of a 185-pound junior from Charleston, W.Va., one Alex Hawkins by name. And on the Palmetto campus, they'll tell you there's not a better man for the job. Many call him the finest halfback in the South, and possibly of all-America timber.

Stan Spears, a 180-pound sophomore from Clover, S.C., moves into the quarterback slot to replace Bunch. Frank Destino, a stocky senior, takes Dixon's backfield calls, and senior Don Johnson does the heavy labor work at full back.

Defensively, the Gamecocks have little fear at tackle, where all-star candidate John Kompara

EVEN ON 'BUYING SCALES,' HIDEAWAY CATCH WAS BIG

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

We were in Tallahassee when the Talquin Dam went out under the pressure of heavy flood waters. The sudden flood roared over the highway, washing off cars and reportedly drowned several motorists. No one seems to have learned how many fishermen were down river and trapped under the wall of water.

If the dam had waited just one day to blow, I'd have been either on the lake or fishing the river below it—possibly for a quick trip to the Gulf. The Ochlockonee, between Highway 20 and where it mingles with the brine, is one of my favorite rivers. I've fished for rockfish in the shadow of the powerhouse and taken monstrous bream out of hidden sloughs far down river. It is a great bass stream, as some of my Cracker friends who fish it from Breakaway Lodge will testify.

If I had to select any one day on the Ochlockonee, to be the longest remembered, I'm sure I'd pick the afternoon that Ben Waddill talked me into going to a downriver slough for bream when I wanted to stay on the lake and fish for bass.

Ben hauled along a couple of cane poles and some earthworms the size of garter snakes. My favorite trout rod happened to be in the trunk of the car, so I put it in the boat, with a handful of trout flies.

We drove to a landing flanked by swamps, slid our bateau into the water and paddled a quarter of a mile down the river to a mud flat. The mud was slippery, but firm enough to hold us, and we dragged the bateau a hundred yards through the swamp to a long crescent slough. The water was clear, overhung with vegetation which was almost tropical, and its draperies of gray moss made it a picture place.

Ben insisted that he take first turn at the paddle and that I try the flyrod and one of the flies which resembled a gray gnat we had seen on the water. I stripped off line, laid the gnat close to the overhung bank and let it sink a foot. When I twitched the rod tip to give it action, the leader went taut and I set the hook.

The thing didn't come in—not right away. With the light trout rod I scuffled him over at least a quarter of an acre and was amazed when I played in a bream so large that he would have stretched my iron camp pan.

From that moment until almost dusk, we spent turns fishing the perimeter of that hidden slough. Ben had found it while he was hunting turkeys, and except for a native or two, I'm sure no one else knew about it. We did try the cane poles and can of snakes he'd brought along, but the large bream seemed to prefer the trout flies even over our garden hackle.

We kept only the largest bream, and weighed the string of 19 at the nearest country store. They went a couple of ounces under 38 pounds. The storekeeper was as amazed as we were.

"And these ain't my selling scales either," he declared. "They're the ones I use for buying."

After the dam broke, we looked at the lake. Most of its water was gone, and I'm sure that a great many of those tremendous bass in Talquin Lake went down stream with the flooding waters. They'll fill up the sloughs and swamp lakes, such as the one where we found the bream. Some really huge largemouths will be taken out of those waters for the next year, or longer. I've got the river on my list, in capital letters.

Askew, Watkins, Theodocion, Reed Solve Jacket Problem

Guard Posts In Good Hands

By GEORGE CUNNINGHAM

Now that enough returns are in, it's safe to say that an expected Georgia Tech trouble spot ain't. Bobby Dodd and Ray Graves both agreed Wednesday the Yellow Jacket guard play was above and beyond their "wildest" September dreams.

One man, Leon Askew, remained from the first three 1956 units when the season opened. A service returnee, a converted center and sophomore have teamed with Askew to solve the problem post.

Dodd said, "our guards have exceeded my wildest hopes. We couldn't ask for better performances than Askew, Watkins (Foster), Theodocion (Dan) and Reed (John Neal) have given us."

Graves said, "you can't say too much about how our guards have shouldered their burden. They've been outplayed only one time this year—against Louisiana State—and I guess you could say the whole team was outplayed in that one."

Watkins, the converted center, has been the biggest surprise of them all. Shifted to guard just before the Kentucky opener, the Columbus junior has been one of the brightest gems in defensive coach Graves' diadem.

Foster Watkins

John Reed

"Foster consistently has been one of the best linemen all year," Graves said. "I believe he has made more key plays for us than any other linemen."

"Two games in particular, Foster played tremendously. Against Kentucky, he threw the passer for losses on two vital plays. And against Southern Methodist, he stopped a Mustang touchdown drive with a key tackle."

Dodd said Watkins was the outstanding Tech lineman against Auburn, along with end Ted Smith.

Watkins has been alternating at left guard with service returnee Dan Theodocion.

"Theo has terrific desire, and he's been one of the real leaders on the team," Dodd continued. "He's 23, the oldest man on the squad, and has been a tremendous help to us all season."

The sophomore is Reed, 211-pounder from Albertville, Ala. The lineman was an outstanding member of Army's 1955 plebe team, was red-shirted at Tech last year and has been a capable replacement for Askew this season.

Pilney reported all but two players physically okay, although several missed the workout because of laboratory work. Still ailing but reported improving are guard John DiVietro and tackle Don Lockwood, both starters.

Owen Returns From Montreal

"Reed's having a fine sophomore year," Graves said. "He might be another Beck (Ray) or Healey (Bill) before he leaves here."

Beck and Healey were two of Tech's greatest guards, both unanimous choices for All-American.

Askew has not been a surprise. Tech coaches even last year rated him equal to All-Southeastern Conference nominee Allen Ecker. And they say he's improved this season.

But finest accolade tossed the guard way came from an unnamed member of the Jacket coaching staff: "Inexperienced as they were at the start, films have shown they've made fewer mistakes than any other position."

FLAT FACTS—Jackets went through light Wednesday drill, with no contact ordered for the varsity. . . . Ken Owen, fullback on the 1956 squad, has departed the Montreal Alouettes and now is at home in Salisbury, N.C. The All-SEC selectee reinjured his knee and plans to return to Tech next quarter to finish work on a degree. . . . Bobby Dodd about Tulane's quarterback Gene Newton: "Put him on Oklahoma's team, and he'd be a shoe-in for All-American. He can do it all."

. . . Dan Theodocion was a sweat-soaked warrior. . . . Everybody else was in pads, and healthy, trainer Buck Andel said. . . . Another Doddism: "I can't understand it. Mississippi was undefeated and only a 14-point favorite over Tulane. We've lost two games and haven't won any more than Tulane, and we're 20-point favorites."

Reynolds Shoots 82, Takes Griffin Lead

Allen and Denson Trail In State Medal Play

By BERT PRATHER
Constitution Sports Writer

GRIFFIN, Oct. 23—Mary Ann Reynolds, Georgia's ruling lady of golf, opened defense of her State Medal Play Championship Wednesday with a 41-41—82. This gave the Albany star a four-stroke working margin with two more rounds to go over the exceptionally tough Griffin Golf Club course. Men's par here is 72, women's, 76.

Mrs. A. H. Allen, who won her husband, a Marine colonel, was transferred to Albany, made her Georgia debut with a 43-43—86 to hold down second place.

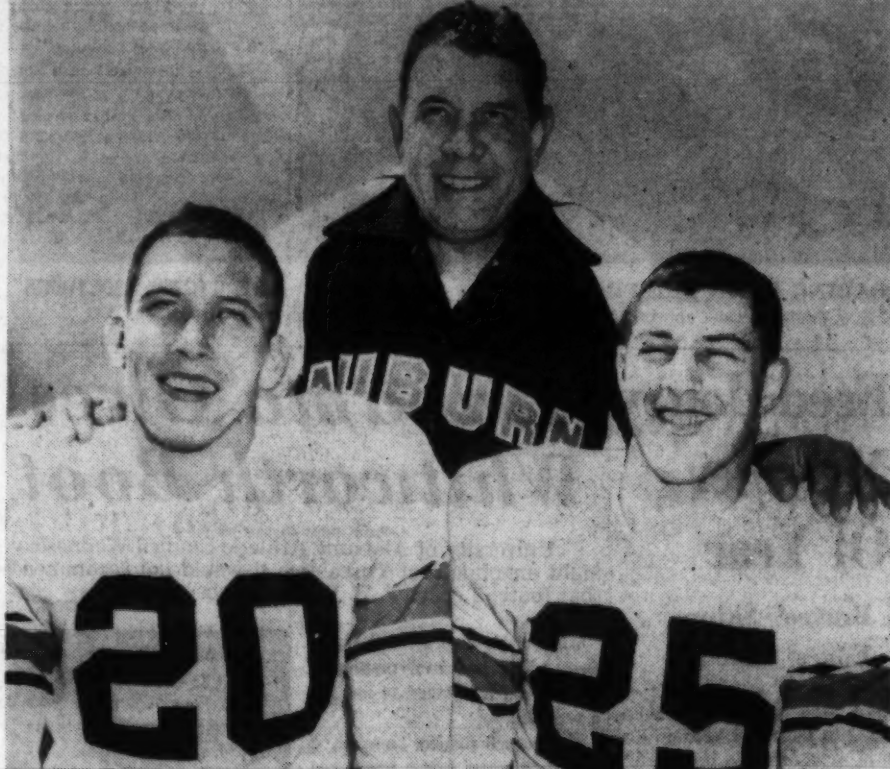

Decatur High's Joyce Denson, holder of Atlanta City title, was in third place at end of first day's play with 45-44—89. She was followed by Mrs. W. Wilbanks, also from Decatur, with 42-49—91.

Pete Ferris, former star Georgia Tech end who now serves as greenkeeper and golf shop pro here, has the course in good shape for this season of the year. Main reason for high scores can be traced to ruggedness of the course. It is a real test layout.

Griffin Ladies Golf Assn. entertained visiting players and officials at a dinner party Wednesday night.

The tournament runs through Friday. Mrs. Reynolds, who plays out of Radium Country Club, is seeking her third straight title in this tournament. She won it in 1955 at Ft. Benning and again last year at Sea Island. Mary Ann captured State match play championship for the first time last spring at Savannah Golf Club.

First round scores: Mrs. Robert Reynolds, Albany, 41-41—82; Mrs. A. H. Allen, Albany, 43-43—86; Mrs. W. Wilbanks, Decatur, 42-49—91; Mrs. Joyce Denson, Decatur, 45-44—89; Mrs. L. L. Martin, Albany, 42-45—87; Mrs. Paul Bunnell, Albany, 42-45—87; Mrs. Tom McJannet, Columbus, 42-48—90; Mrs. Curtis Jordan, Columbus, 42-48—90; Mrs. Irene Aden, Albany, 42-48—90; Mrs. Sidney Smith, Albany, 42-48—90; Mrs. Carl Norvell, Griffin, 42-48—90; Mrs. Curtis F. Bennett, 42-48—90; Mrs. Tom Burdeshaw, Griffin, 42-48—90; Mrs. Teddy Harp, Albany, 42-48—90; Mrs. H. H. Hedrick, Albany, 42-48—90; Mrs. Henry Carroll, Albany, 42-48—90; Mrs. J. A. AUBURN'S TD TWINS WOULD LIKE TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY
WILL HOPPE, LORINO DANCE ANNIVERSARY TD WALTZ?By MICKEY LOGUE
Constitution Sports Writer

AUBURN, Ala., Oct. 23—Auburn halfbacks Bobby Hoppe and Tommy Lorino hope to celebrate a football anniversary in the end zones of Houston's Homecoming Cougars Saturday night.

When the opening whistle sounds at Rice Stadium, they will have been together in the Plainsmen starting backfield one year.

Some 50,000 eager followers of fall pigskin shenanigans will be sitting in, and Lorino and Hoppe would like to serve them a TD treat—or treatment—depending on where an onlooker's loyalty lies.

For four games the past season, the pair battled for the same left halfback berth, with Lorino holding a slight first string edge. Then the speedy Hoppe showed such improvement as a defender and offensively, coach Ralph Jordan felt he had to get him in the lineup. Hoppe returned to right half, where he had played as a sophomore.

The switch was official against Houston. Hoppe responded by scoring his first collegiate touchdown. He circled Houston's 10-man line on a great individual effort.

Lorino acknowledged the exceptional blocking Hoppe provided by gaining 104 yards in 12 carries. Auburn won, 12-0.

After bowing to Florida the following week, the Plainsmen concluded the season with a four-game winning span. The breakaway dashes of Lorino and Hoppe and end Red Phillips' pass receiving were offensive contributors to the streak.

Though Auburn has run its victories to eight straight in 1957, it has been without "longies" from the trio. All have been defensive stickouts, however.

Especially, Phillips. Ironically, the great receiver is making All-American progress as a defender.

They got rolling at midseason last year, and Jordan hopes history repeats.

PLAIN FACTS—Scout Vince Dooley compares Houston with Kentucky. "They run their Split-T a little better than Kentucky does, but I think Kentucky has the edge on straight T stuff. They're actually more similar defensively. I think Houston is better defensively this year than last. Their quarterback, Sammy Blount, is an outstanding passer." . . . Houston uses a 10-man line on goal line defense. And despite rolling up 426 yards last year, Auburn could score against it only twice. . . . Flu has tackle Cleve Wester and guard Jeff Weekley in the infirmary. But trainer Kenny Howard expects them to be ready for the Cougars. Guard Frank LaRossa, injured against Tech, probably will play, Howard said. Tommy Lorino was bruised up against Tech, and is in sweat clothes. The nation's No. 1 defensive club is in quest of points this week. Practice and more practice is slated on moving the ball—across the goal line.

Manning Pulls Muscle, Doubtful for Saturday

Soberdash, Littleton Readied To Replace Ailing Halfbacks

By DAN KITCHENS

ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 23—When Georgia clashes with Kentucky Saturday night, the Wildcats will probably face a 50 per cent new Bulldog starting backfield.

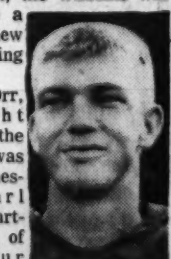

Jimmy Orr, regular right half, hurt in the Navy game was joined Wednesday by Carl Manning, starting left half of the last four games, on the doubtful list.

Manning's injury, a pulled muscle, is the result of a strenuous effort on pass defense drill Tuesday afternoon. Trainer Sam Richwine said Wednesday that the strain was more serious than at first believed, and as a consequence, Manning may not start against the Wildcats.

If Orr and Manning watch the kick-off from the sidelines they will be replaced on the field by sophomore Don Soberdash and junior Gene Littleton. It will be the first starting assignment for either.

Fortunately for the Bulldogs, both the new possible starters have just recently shown good running form with plenty of audacity.

On Georgia's second touchdown drive against Navy they contrib-

Wright Nips Wells, 1-Up In N-S Golf

PINEHURST, N.C., Oct. 23 (AP)—Co-medalist Frederick J. Wright of Watertown, Mass., dropped a 40-foot putt on the 21st hole here today to defeat J. M. Wells of Newell, W. Va., 1-up in a feature match of the North and South Seniors golf championship.

The two golfers staged a last ditch battle after Wright was out in 35 over the No. 2 championship course of the Pinehurst Country Club, putting him one up.

Wells caught up and the two halved No. 17 when Wells sank a 20-foot putt. Each shot pars on Nos. 18, 19 and 20. On the 21st, Wright took aim and dropped his 40-footer to give him the match and send him into tomorrow's quarterfinals.

William H. Biddel of Carmel, Ind., eliminated James M. McAlvin of Lake Forest, Ill., 1-up in 24 holes, the tournament's longest match.

Benjamin Krafard of Titusville, Fla., defeated Arthur S. Lynch of Scarsdale, N.Y., 2 and 1; J. Wood Platt of Philadelphia defeated Parra B. Jones of Cape Elizabeth, Maine, 3 and 2; Frank B. LSU's Taylor Takes Over Scoring Lead From Carlton

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—In a football season when most major college teams are using the forward pass sparingly, two players from one state are catching passes at a rate that hasn't been approached in recent years. A third is getting extraordinary yardage from comparatively few receptions.

Halfway through the season, NCAA Service Bureau statistics today showed that Stu Vaughan and Gary Kapp of Utah State 24. Each hauled in five last Saturday. In third place is Don Ellingsen of Washington State, whose 22 catches would have been tops at this stage in any of the past three seasons. Buddy Dial of Rice has received only 13 passes, but he has gained the top figure of 381 yards on them, averaging almost 30 yards a catch. It's the first time in five years anyone has

There'll be more rivalry at Lakewood's Blue-Gray Championship race Sunday than the four racing divisions there can accommodate. Not only will there be the North versus South feud going between Midwest Assn. of Racing Cars' tow circuits—even the Rebels will be feuding among themselves.

The Lakewood 100-mile closes out the 1957 point season for the southern division and the race is so close for some of the positions that at least seven of the drivers could swap positions in the top ten.

About the only certain finisher in his current point position is southern champion Roz Howard. He's so far out front he clinched offered the opportunity to cry the cry of "too much youth and sophomores" this season, but has steadfastly refused to do so.

The young cult has improved with each week. Bill Barbary has given Harvey White a spiritual lift at quarterback. Both are capable of throwing the long strike, and Johnny Mac Goff adds his pitching wares to the group.

Halfback George Ustry, the youngster from Waycross, Ga., has been invaluable to the Tigers. He's available on every play, and never seems to tire. And he catches passes almost as well as he runs. At fullback, soph Doug Cline is a hard plunger and an unusually fine blocker. Mike Dukes of Atlanta teams with Bob Spooner to make FB a rugged area on the Clemson side.

Rudy Hayes has returned to action at left half, and strengthened this outpost. Behind starter Sonny Quesenberry at right half is Atlantian Charlie Horne, a streak player.

To turn back the Gamecocks' road runners (they seldom pass, but have hit 10-for-14 when they do), Howard counts on the likes of guard John Grijan, Atlantian Harold Olson at tackle, Donnie Buntin at center and rugged Ray Masneri at the flank.

It appears Big Thursday will match South Carolina's limb-crushing ground game against Clemson aerial fireworks.

Giese, advised of a rain forecast, insists precipitation would aid the enemy's heavier line. But rain or no rain, the Tigers' best chance seems to be in the air, somewhat below Sputnik, and somewhere near the goal lines.

Big Thursday games are seldom duds, and tomorrow is Big Thursday.

Lakewood Duel Decides Rebels' Point Standings

By RALPH GREGORY

There'll be more rivalry at Lakewood's Blue-Gray Championship race Sunday than the four racing divisions there can accommodate.

Not only will there be the North versus South feud going between Midwest Assn. of Racing Cars' tow circuits—even the Rebels will be feuding among themselves.

The Lakewood 100-mile closes out the 1957 point season for the southern division and the race is so close for some of the positions that at least seven of the drivers could swap positions in the top ten.

About the only certain finisher in his current point position is southern champion Roz Howard. He's so far out front he clinched the title several weeks ago.

But the battle for second could go to one of three different drivers. Charley Stone of Austell is currently in the No. 2 spot, but Thomas Aiken is only 110 points behind and Chester Barron only 30 behind Aiken. Since the winner gets 200 points, either of the three has a chance to take over second.

Further down the standings, Roscoe Thompson and Bennie Rakestraw are tied for seventh and eighth and the highest finisher clinches the No. 7 spot.

Gober Sosebee, injured in the last Lakewood race, is ten points ahead of T. C. Hunt and may not enter this one. Should Sosebee fail to drive, Hunt is almost certain to move up a spot.

Still the sectional rivalry is there. This is the third Blue-Gray and Southern drivers have taken both the two previous ones. Howard won it last year and Thompson took the first one in 1955.

Besides the battle between the divisions, both sides will have to look out for a couple of other groups running some hotshot drivers. United States Auto Club has Marshall Teague, Ralph Moody, Jerry Unser and Troy Ruttman as leading entries and International Motor Car Assn. counters with point champion Johnny Beauchamp and Bob Burdick.

MARC's northern division features point champion Nelson Stacy, Iggy Katona, Bob Couter, Bob James and Bobby Hunter.

Still it's the Rebel versus the Yankee feud and to start it off evenly the band — Monroe's championship marching group — will play both the national anthem and Dixie. Then it's every northerner for himself.

Time trials start at 1 p.m. with the feature scheduled at 3 p.m.

GEORGIA DISCOVERS HYPNOTIST ON SQUAD

By JIM CARSON

ATHENS, Oct. 23—If Wallace Butts should ever decide to use hypnotism in an effort to improve the football fortunes of his Georgia Bulldogs, he won't have to look outside his squad.

For B team halfback Dale Bush, a 20-year-old sophomore from Colquitt, is an experienced and successful hypnotist. Bush said he learned to hypnotize last summer from a National Guard sergeant at a summer camp at Bainbridge. "I'd fooled around a little with some match and card tricks and was kinda interested in this sort of thing," Bush said, "so I didn't have any trouble picking it up."

"You must first convince the person you are trying to hypnotize that you can put them to sleep, and you've got to have a lot of confidence in your own ability to hypnotize."

Most of all of Bush's football buddies including sophomore varsity guard Billy Roland, a high school teammate at Colquitt, can testify to his hypnotic power.

Maybe Butts will call on Bush to put a spell on the Bulldogs that will make them a first half as well as a second half club. And for a fact, Butts wasn't aware until Tuesday that this man Bush could hypnotize.

Haney Selected Tops Among NL Managers often emerges from Hollywood—a brisk walk from his Los Angeles home.

Although selected most likely to win the league championship in preseason estimates, the Braves were dealt one damaging blow after another.

At various stages of the campaign they were without the services of first-stringers Joe Adcock, Eddie Mathews, Johnny Logan and Billy Bruton. Bruton's injury was the most serious and he did not return to the line-up after wrenching a knee on July 11.

Still, Haney brought his club on with a rush and it broke the race wide open with an eight-game winning streak in mid-September. The Braves clinched the flag Sept. 23.

The result was in marked contrast to the outcome of last year's competition in which the Braves held the lead in the last week but were nosed out by the Brooklyn Dodgers on the final day.

The past season was the 59-year-old Haney's eighth as a big-league manager. He led the St. Louis Browns from 1939 through 1941 and Pittsburgh from 1953 through 1955. Except for the last two years, none of his major league teams finished higher than sixth.

Hutchinson, who was in his second year with St. Louis, was given much of the credit for the strong stand made by the Cards. The team was in first place at the mid-season All-Star break.

Hutchinson, a star pitcher for Detroit until 1951, managed the Tigers in 1952, 1953 and 1954. He was released after the '54 campaign and following one season with Seattle of the Pacific Coast League, was hired by Frank Lane, the Cards' general manager.

Smith had his Phils in the thick of the pennant fight for the first half of the season. But the failure of pitcher Robin Roberts and the ineffective hitting of some of the veterans bogged the club down into an eventual fifth-place finish.

Boyd Outfights Szuzina

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Oct. 23 (AP)—Bobby Boyd won a unanimous decision over Franz Szuzina here Wednesday night.

The decision met with little approval from the scant crowd of 969 that paid $1,762.

Judge Harold McGrath gave it to Boyd, 6 rounds to 3 with 1 even. Judge Dick Albion called it 7-3 and Referee Joe Palmer had it closer at 5-4-1. The Associated Press had Boyd on top 5-3-2.

It was Boyd's second victory over the Bremen battler. He scored a split decision over Szuzina last March in Miami Beach.

In celebrating his 24th birthday a day early with a victory, Boyd advanced in his comeback among the middles. His career was delayed when he suffered a broken jaw in a bout last September. Since that defeat at the hands of Joey Giardello, Boyd has scored six ring triumphs.

The crowd-pleasing Szuzina gave away a four-inch height advantage against Boyd's 5-11 frame. His looping lefts and rights and wide-in style appeared to hamper Boyd's boxing abilities until midway in the bout.

In the infighting, which marked most of the bout, Boyd had the advantage.

The only knock-down punch was a looping right cross to the head of Referee Joe Palmer.

Palmer was attempting to separate the fighters who were still pitching after the bell. He stepped in too close and caught a hand from Szuzina.

Robinson and Boyd Join Major Loop .300 Group

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (AP)—Frank Robinson of Cincinnati and Bob Boyd of Baltimore joined the select ranks of batters whose major league lifetime averages are .300 or better, as a result of their 1957 performances.

Statistics compiled by the Associated Press disclosed today that 18 active players boast a career average of .300 or over, two less than there were at the end of the 1956 season. Records are based on players who have participated in at least 300 games.

Robinson and Boyd became the only new additions. The Redlegs' outfielder boosted his lifetime mark from .290 to .307. Boyd's career average went from .284 to .301. The Orioles' first baseman batted .318 last season.

Eight National League players own at least a .300 average with Stan Musial heading the parade. Stan The Man, who captured his seventh batting title with a .351 percentage, maintained his .340 lifetime average.

Three National League players dropped out of the elite category and Jackie Robinson retired from baseball prior to the 1957 campaign with a .311 career average.

Those who dipped below the .300 circle were San Francisco's Don Mueller (.302 to .298), Cincinnati's Smoky Burgess (.301 to .299) and Pittsburgh's Bill Virdon (.301 to .294). In 1957 Mueller batted .258, Burgess .238 and Virdon .251.

Ten American League batsmen possess .300 or better lifetime averages, topped by Boston's Ted Williams. The Thumper, in winning his fifth hitting crown with a .388 average, raised his lifetime mark from .348 to .350.

A trio of National Leaguers increased their .300 plus career percentages and moved up in the listings. Hank Aaron of Milwaukee displaced Philadelphia's Richie Ashburn as runner-up to Musial, .313 to .312. Aaron hit .322 in 1957 and his lifetime average rose three points.

The others to show a gain were Willie Mays of San Francisco and Carl Furillo of Los Angeles. Mays soared from .306 to .311 as a result of his .333 season performance and Furillo batted .307, his career mark rising one point to .301.

BRYANT NOT SOUGHT, NOT SEEKING TIDE JOB

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Oct. 23 (AP)—Coach Paul Bryant of Texas A&M said tonight there is absolutely no foundation to reports that he is being sought as coach at Alabama, and that he wouldn't take it if he was.

Bryant, former star player at Alabama and assistant coach there four years, declared: "I am not interested in any other job; I am trying to do the job I have and am very happy with it."

He made a plea that there be no further rumors that he might go to Alabama as coach.

Stocks Zoom Up In Record Rally

Recovery Is Best in 28 Years; 2-Day Losses Are Wiped Out

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—An astounding stock market rally today gave stocks their best one-way advance in 28 years and more than wiped out the heavy losses of Monday and Tuesday.

Key stocks raced ahead from 1 to 10 points as the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange rose an estimated $7,200,000, based on the advance in the averages.

This more than erased the estimated $6-billion-dollar loss of the past two days, most suffered Monday in the worst sell-off since the session immediately following President Eisenhower's September 1953 health attack.

Today's rise was the best on average since Nov. 14, 1929—the day of a temporary rebound from the historic crash.

The rally today was attributed by Wall Streeters largely to a resurgence of confidence based on President Eisenhower's announced plans to make a series of speeches reaffirming faith in the United States economy and scientific achievement.

The huge rise also was ascribed to the technical factors involved in an expected rebound from a badly oversold condition. Whatever the cause, brokers reported that buying orders came virtually from everywhere including the mutual funds and great institutions which are the major factors in the modern stock market.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 17.34 to 437.13, its biggest upward move since Nov. 14, 1929 when it rose 18.59.
